STATE ATTORN'Y CROWE LOSES IN FIRST SKIRMISH

Big Legal Fight Finally Breaks When Crowe Makes Vain Effort to Shut Off All Testimony by Defense — Judge Caverly Overrules His Objections and Motion For a Jury Trial.

(By The Associated Press)

CHICAGO, July 30.—The big legal fight by attorneys for Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, confessed murderers of Robert Franks, to save them from the gallows, broke out in Judge Caverly's court today.

The engagement opened when Robert E. Crowe, State's attorney, after rest his own case, sought to shut off all testimony by defense alienists relating to the mental responsibilities of the youthful defendants.

Court recessed for luncheon at 12:30 p. m. with the argument unfinished.

Crowe maintained that the plea of guilty prevented the defense from showing any state of mind as a mitigation of punishment and with his assistants continued the argument throughout the morning session, even though Judge Caverly said he would overrule the objection.

The defense told the judge that they had a right to show that mentality had figured in the circumstances of the crime and the court indicated that he agreed with them.

The judge said, however, that no opportunity remained for an offer of insanity as a legal defense, and he would not permit such testimony to be introduced.

When the dispute reached a squabbling stage, Crowe said to the court: "If you hear evidence as to insanity and then sentence these men to life imprisonment and they then appeal to the supreme court, I will confess error."

"I don't care what you gentlemen do with this case when I get through with it," retorted the judge.

CHICAGO, July 30.—The state closed and the defense started testimony today in the hearing which is to determine the punishment of Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb for the kidnaping and murder of Robert Franks.

Frank A. Sheer was the last witness for the state. He testified merely that he took Loeb's confession the night of May 30.

The defense called as its first witness Dr. William A. White, superintendent of St. Elizabeth's hospital, Washington, D. C.

Judge Caverly overruled an objection by State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe to testimony by any defense alienists.

"If your honor gave these defendants a term of years satisfactory to them and their attorneys," argued Mr. Crowe, "I could not appeal and they would not. I insist if this question of insanity is raised, it is your honor's duty to impanel a jury and determine the facts."

Judge Caverly shook his head and said "overruled," but Mr. Crowe continued the argument on the legal point he had raised.

During the argument Judge Caverly declared that the defense would

CHARGE COUPLE WITH MURDER OF GIRL 10 YRS. AGO

Prominent Couple Bound Over, as Climax to Disappearance of Modiste

(By The Associated Press.)

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., July 30.—While the climax to the mystery surrounding the disappearance of Miss Augusta Hoffman, modiste, was reached yesterday afternoon when Wm. H. Bennett, district freight agent for the Southern railway at Rome, Ga., and his wife were bound over to the grand jury on charges of murder, interest is in no wise abated. The grand jury does not meet until September, unless called in extraordinary session, and in the meantime the prosecution has announced that no effort will be spared to get at the bottom of the mysterious affair.

While Mis sHoffman vanished in 1915, relatives who had abandoned hope of learning her fate are now taking an active interest in the investigation and will co-operate with the officers. Little doubt is expressed but that the skeleton found under a house here formerly occupied by the Bennetts is the remains of the missing modiste, the identification having been made almost poositive by Mrs. Anne C. Wright, of Richmond, Va., a sister of the modiste, who furnished an affidavit used in the trial yesterday, sh ehaving recognized the plate of false teeth and shoes found in the grave as similar to those usually worn by Miss Hoffman.

Prominence of the Bennett family has added interest to the case, he having stood high in church and fraternal circles for years. However, Mrs. Bennett was indicted here several years ago on the charge of raising treasury bills, the case being nolle prossed.

Picture Raises Storm In British House of Commons

(By The Associated Press.)

LONDON, July 30.—Quite a little storm has been raised in the house of commons by the hanging on a wall of one of the staircases of a picture, commissioned by Lord Astor, representing his wife being introduced to the house by the Earl of Balfour and Mr. Lloyd George when she took her seat in 1919.

Nobody seems to know whoo gave permission to hang the picture and several members of all the parties are offended because the sanction of the house was not obtained. None, however, avow hostility to Lady Astor personally.

A large number of the members now have signed a round-robin asking the premier to prevent the display in the house of portraits of any living person unless the assent of parliament is first obtained.

TOWN TOPICS

Maitland Bustard, who with J N. Benton is winding up the affairs of the defunct Yellow Cab Company has sold the franchise for the motor bus line between Danville and South Boston to John Keesee for $400. Mr. Bustard states hat he transfer of the franchise had to be brought about quickly otherwise the failure in service would have resulted in a demand for explanation by the State Corporation Commission.

The Piedmont Warehouse Company has decided not to connect its present building with the Loyall Street Colored Baptist church recently acquired by public auction for $10,000. The company proposes to convert the church into two stores to be leased one of them to a conern handling heavy groceries for farm trade.

A. M. Johnson, a guard from the state penitentiary yesterday called for prisoners sentenced at the last two terms of the Corporation court who will be assigned to a road camp in the vicinity of Chase City where the state is improving highways. Those who were removed yesterday evening to the camp were Walker Sandridge, J. W. Brown, Gilbert Lewis and John Daniel, Henry Motley, George Gray, the last three being negroes.

The Danville Rotary club will be host next Tuesday evening at the Danville Golf club when the clubs from Reidsville and Leaksville-Spray will be guests. This will be the third "inter-city meet" of the year. An attractive program is being prepared for the event.

Approximately 50 Danvlile people authorized to vote in the primary of next Tuesday will do so by mail for fully that number of mail ballot slips have been distributed by Jesse W. Benton, clerk of the local electoral board. The period within which application for the mailed ballot slip may be made, has already expired five days before the date of the primary or election being the minimum time. The vote-by-mail requisites this year are different from those obtaining before. The minimum time limit until now has been 15 days and postmasters throughout the country were required to play their part in the formality. The ballot now can be marked in the presence of any notary public. The local electoral board had printed full instructions to those voting by mail and these instructions were forwarded or handed to every person making application for the vote-by-mail ballot.

Rev. James M. Shelburne, pastor of the First Baptist church, is today attending the Baptist Association at Chatham, but will return to the city in time to conduct the regular Wednesday night services tonight at 8 o'clock. The subject tonight will be "The Minor Prophet and the Book Joel."

Patton street firemen were called by telephone [illegible] to No. 521 Newton street [illegible] by Miss Hallie Boyd. Firemen found that ashes from a cook stove had fallen on the wooden floor and had burned a small hole in it. A bucket of water was all that was necessary.

An interesting revival, and one which is being well attended is taking place at Design Methodist church. Rev. Granville B. King, former pastor of the Pittsylvania circuit, and Rev. John Marshall, formerly pastor of Schoolfield Methodist church, will be present tonight and tomorrow night.

Officials of the Piedmont league and club managers have been invited by W. G. Bramham, president of the league to meet K. M. Landis, commissioner of baseball at dinner in Winston-Salem, N. C., at 1 o'clock on Friday, August 8th. The baseball commissioner who is touring the minor leagues will be guest of the Piedmont circuit on that day. Sporting writers throughout the circuit have also been included by Mr. Bramham in the invitation.

The establishment of a bus line between Danville and Richmond, a distance of 156 miles, which was to have begun operations on July 1st, is being held up on account of the determination of the Southern Railway Company to contest the franchise application before the State Corporation Commission. The Royal Blue Bus Line Co., of Greensboro, N. C., has filed the application for the franchise. A hearing has been set before the commission on August 15th, at which time the arguments of both sides will be heard. If the line is established it will probably be the longest single line in the State of Virginia. The proposed schedule calls for a fivehour trip along the improved roads between this city and the State capital.

The executive committee of the Chamber of Commerce met early this afternoon and took up several matters. Among these was the filling of the vacancy which will be created on August 15th when Mrs. P. G. Giles for several years assistant secretary for several years assistant secretary of the Chamber of Commerce resigns to become associated with the Danville Fair Association. Her resignation has been before the board for some time. Indications are that an appointment will be made before the middle of the month. Secretary Diggs reported today progress on the plans for the umbrella sheds at the railway station. As soon as these have been completed and approved a call for bids to contracors will be issued, it being understood that the work will be done by private contractor rather than by th carrier company itself.

ARE SHOT FROM AMBUSH; BEING SOUGHT BY MOBS

Men Active in Prohibition Raids Shot to Death on Obscure Trail

(By The Associated Press.)

WILMINGTON, N. C., July 30.—Hundreds of armed men gathered early today in the swamps near Phoenix, fifteen miles from here, to hunt for the slayers of Sam W. Lilly, deputy U. S. marshal, and Leon George, city prohibition officer and special deputy marshal, who were shot to death last night from ambush.

The scene of the killing was an obscure trail through a swamp near Phoenix, over which Lilly and George were traveling in the former's automobile. The two, who had been unusually active lately in raiding moonshine plants in the vicinity, had left Wilmington in the afternoon to serve papers in a prohibition case and apparently had paused on their way to seize a small copper still which was found in the car with their bodies.

Powders burns on George's face disclosed the nearness of the assassins when they fired at the deputies. Twenty-five buckshot wounds were found in George's body and at least twenty in that of Lilly. Their weapons had not been used.

Posses left Wilmington and nearby towns for the scene as soon as news of the killing was received. Their efforts to run down the slayers immediately, however, were handicapped by the darkness and the organized hunt was delayed, until dawn.

DANVILLE GRAYS LEAVE FOR CAMP EARLY FRIDAY

Local Artillery Unit to Spend Two Weeks at Fortress Monroe

The Danville Grays, known officially as Battery "E" 246th Artillery, Virginia National Guard, will leave early on Friday morning for Fortress Monroe where they will spend the next two weeks in training. HE SAVES TOWN FROM POVERTY

PAUL UNGRODT

WASHBURN, Wis., July 30.—Paul Ungrodt, "boy mayor," is saving Washburn from bankruptcy.

The 23-year-old college youth, through a drastic program of municipal economy, is paying off all bills and revising civil morale.

And Washburn is regaining a bit of the prosperity it enjoyed during the war when the nearby Du Pont Powder plant at Barksdale, near here, made it a bustling little town.

Ungrodt and his councilmen are turning their salary checks back into the municipal treasury. And any number of jobs have been dispensed with entirely.

"Before the end of the year all our unpaid indebtedness, totaling $52,000 when I took office, will be squared away," says Ungrodt, probably the youngest mayor in the country.

Sec. Hughes Puts Wreath on Tomb of Unknown Soldier

(By The Associated Press)

PARIS, July 30.—Secretary Hughes prefaced another round of activity with a long walk in the fresh brisk air of an autumn like morning. It was his first chance to see a little of Paris leisurely and free from the constraint of official ceremoniousness

Not long after the distinguished visitor's walk a wreath was found lying on the tomb of the Unknown Poilu inscribed simply:

"From a friend."

Instances are rare of such homage being paid the Unknown Warrior without previous announcement and more or less official parade and it incited eager search as to the identity of the author of this simple mark of respect.

Mr. Hughes was not thought of at first because it was expected by everybody that when the American secretary of stae accomplished this new traditional tribute he would be accompanied, as is the custom in such cases, by representatives of French officialdom.

The policeman on duty at the Arc de Triomphe declared however, that there had been no processions during he morning and nothing resembling a ceremony. He remembered though a short call paid by three or four persons and his description of them left little doubt that the anonymous "friend" was Secretary Hughes and that Ambassador Herrick was one of those with him. The embassy refused either to confirm or deny the reported visit, which fact in itself was considered sufficient confirmation.

After his walk and his brief visit to the Unknown Soldier's tomb, Mr. Hughes returned to Ambassador Herrick's house and went with the ambassador to the Palace of the Elysee, where he was entertained at luncheon by President Doumergue.

FUNERAL OF MRS. DOVE

Funeral services for Mrs. Sarah Katherine Dove who died at her home on Stokes street on Monday, were conducted from Lee Street Baptist church, of which she was a member, yesterday evening at half past five o'clock by Rev. M. W. Royall. Interment was made in Green Hill cemetery. The pall bearers were J. W. Davis, Sam Dyer, H. F. Walker, J. R. Collins, W. A. Brady and J. F. Garrett.

The flower bearers were Mesdames A. D. Atchison, R. L. Leftwich, John Davis, Brady Dixon, DuBose, Banes, Lipford, Garrett and Willis and Willis and Misses Lipford and Evans.

KLANSMEN AND ANTI-KLAN MEN CLASH AT MEET

HOLD BROTHERS FOR MURDER OF THEIR PARENTS

Defense Seeks to Have Cases Quashed Because of Lack of Evidence

(By The Associated Press.)

LANCASTER, Pa., July 30.—Claiming that the prosecution has failed at the preliminary hearing to substantiate the charges of murder against Benjamin F. Dorsheimer, Atlantic City real estate dealer, and his brother, Chester A. Dorsheimer of Harrisburg, Pa., counsel for the defense today were preparing to institute haebus corpus proceedings in the Lancaster county court. The court will be asked to hold a hearing Friday or Saturday of this week and the attorneys announced they would seek to have the case quashed because of "lack of evidence."

The accused are alleged to have caused the death of their aged parents in Lancaster in 1910.

The Dorsheimer brothers were held without bail at the close of a hearing yesterday before a justice of the peace at Gap, near here, at which their accuser, Frank E. Dorsheimer, another brother, was the principal witness. After the hearing the defendants were returned to the Lancaster county prison. Neither of them took the witness stand.

Frank Dorsheimer testified that Chester had "confessed" four years ago to the killing of their parents and that later Benjamin also had told him that Chester was the slayer. Benjamin was named executor in the will.

The witness said his two brothers had committed the deed to get possession of their father's estate. On cross-examination he denied that he had attempted to blackmail the defendants or that he had demanded money to drop the case.

Victim of Wreck Dies of Injuries; 14 Others Hurt

(By The Associated Press)

CHARLOTTE, N. C., July 30.—L. B. Freeman, Gastonia, motorman of the Piedmont and Northern railway passenger car which yesterday collided head-on with a freight train near the outskirts of Charlotte, died early today at a local hospital. His death brings the toll of the accident, which officials of the line said apparently resulted from a misunderstanding [illegible] to one dead, two perhaps [illegible] injured and 12 less serious.

[illegible] of T. S. Trott, Gastonia, motorman of the passenger car and [illegible] Kings Mountain, a passenger, the two most seriously injured, was said to be unchanged today. Both are suffering from fractured skulls.

POOL STILL CRITICALLY ILL AT RICHMOND

(By The Associated Press)

RICHMOND, July 30.—The condition of T. G. Pool, under sentence for violation of the State banking laws, continues critical, it was stated today at a local hospital where he has been confined for several weeks.

Night of Disorders Begin When Crowd of Several Hundred Men, Bitter Against K. K. K. Storm Meeting of Hooded Organization—Scores Are Wounded — Fight Was Culmination of Bitter Feeling For Some Time.

(By The Associated Press.)

LANCASTER, Mass., July 30.—After a night of disorders and clashes in which scores were injured, a crowd of men who had engaged in a night of hostilities with members and spectators at a Ku Klux Klan meeting in a field near here were dispersed with the arrival of additional State patrolmen today. Between 500 and 800 men had engaged in the fighting during the night.

The list of injured today following the night's fighting included five men whose injuries were so serious as to require treatment at hospitals. One was a policeman who was struck on the head by a stone.

Roy Grover, of Clinton, one of the injured, when taken to a hospital, was believed to be suffering from a broken back, but it was found that his injury was less serious and later he was discharged from the hospital.

One of the iniured was suffering from a broken back and three othsr were suffering from wounds believed to have been caused by a shot-gun loaded with rock salt.

Many others are known to have been hurt by clubs, flying stones and other missiles.

Paul Kittredge, said to be a halfback on the Holy Cross football team, another injured, is suffering from 40 wounds, believed to have been caused by rock salt discharged from a gun. He is expected to recover.

The hostilities, which broke out last night when 300 klansmen friends and spectators assembled in a field near here, which they had rented, only to be beleaguered by a crowd of between 300 and 500 men, came as a culmination of bitter feeling for some time.

While the fighting was beginning here a similar outbreak occurred in Spencer, several miles away, when a crowd showered with stones cars carrying persons away from a Ku Klux Klan meeting there. State police dispersed the crowd and arrested five men. At Westminster, near here, a third meeting was held but without disorders.

Two clashes took place here during the night between the crowd within the field an those outside. Rocks were thrown and a shotgun apparently loaded with rock salt fired.

Grover's back was injured when he attempted to run the gauntlet of the crowd outside in an automobile.

As the night wore o nthe police handicapped by their lack of numbers, the scattered position of the cambatants and the darkness, were able only to keep the road clear.

When dawn broke 150 men still remained in the road outside the field and a similar number of men were within the field. But with the coming of morning the crowd in the roadway gradually broke up.

Police reinforcements dispersed the remainder and those who had been forced to remain within the enclosed field were enabled to leave.

GOV. TRINKLE CONCURS IN MAJORITY REPORT ON GAME DEPT. "SCANDAL"

Governor Declares He Can See No Reason Why He Should Override Report on Investigation of Charges of Misappropriation of Funds and Immorality on State Bo

(By The Associated Press)

RICHMOND, July 30.—Nothing could be found in the evidence presented before the special committee of the general assembly which investigated the State Department of Game and Inland Fisheries to "lead me to the belief that it is my duty or that it would be proper for me to override the majority report," Gov. E. Lee Trinkle declared today.

"Nor can I find any reason," the executive added, "why I should, of my own volition, appoint another committee or should myself investigate the charges which have been made and investigated before this special committee of the general assembly."

"The five members of the committee, namely, Holman Willis, W. O. Rogers, Q. C. Davis, W. R. Cato and C. R. Warren, who signed the majority report are men of character and judgment, and I am sure were actuated by a sincere desire to fearlessly discharge their duty as they felt they should do in making the report of their findings.

"The committee heard the testimony, observed the witnesses, watched their demeanor and were in a position to reach a conclusion as to those who were to be believed and those who were not."

In regard to the fees to be paid to attorneys in the investigation, Governor Trinkle declared that question "is not now before me and the request for these fees or any part of them has been at least temporarily withdrawn."

"I feel that it is my duty to state that I have tried to keep up in a reasonable way with the accomplishments of the two departments under Mr. Lee and so far as I am able to observe or learn by inquiry, these two departments have been doing splendid work and accomplishing much good," said the governor. "Mr. Lee, I believe to be the best informed man in Virginia on the fish and oyster industry and I think he is genuinely interested in the development of this work."

In regard to recommendations made in the majority report, the governor said:

"That the house boat referred to in the investigation was owned by the department of game and inland fisheries prior to Mr. Lee's administration. Mr. Lee has been notified by me—in which view he readily concurred—long since that this boat was not needed in his department and that a purchaser should be found for same. I know that Mr. Lee has endeavored to dispose of the house boat but has not been able to get a price that he regarded as anything like reasonable. I have further notified him, in view of the majority report, to dispose of the house boat on the best terms possible as soon as it can be done. It might be noted that the maintenance charges of this house boat for the last several months has been practically nothing.

"I am sure that Mr. Lee understands, and I have impressed on him as emphatically as I can, that he must abandon in the future the custom that seems to have obained during the administrations of his predecessors, as well as his own, of transporting persons from place to place on the Commodore Maury and to some extent to take pleasure trips on board this boat, and that the same must be used solely for state business and that in no event should there be any persons allowed on the boat under such conditions or circumstances as might even afford an opportunity for the same to be actually used for

AMERICAN GLOBE FLIERS HOP OFF ON FIRST LEG OF TRIP OVER ATLANTIC

(By The Associated Press.)

BROUGH, England, July 30.—The American army aviators continuing their world flight, hopped off at 10:24 o'clock this morning for Kirkwall, capital of the Orkney Islands, off the Northern coast of Scotland.

Thus began the first leg of their journey over the Atlantic, by way of Iceland and Greenland, to Indian Harbor, Labrador.

Kirkwall, a town of 3,500, is situated on Houton Roy on the northeastern side of the Island of Mainland, sometimes called Pomona, the largest of the Orkney group. Stores of oil and gasoline await the fliers there and towboats and repairmen are ready in case they are needed.

The weather was calm a[illegible] cally no wind and the sky [illegible] what overcast as the aviators in the three planes took off with the good wishes of the small crowd ringing in their ears. After describing a short circle they headed in the direction of Flamborough Head, the premontory north of Bridinlington Bay, evidently intending to follow the coast northward.

The six men were all in the best of health and spirits and confident that the success which has brought them 18,000 miles on their pioneering flight will not desert them during the last stage of their endeavor.

Before leaving the ground Lieut. Smith, the flight commander, said he expected to reach Kirkwall in about six hours and that the departure from that place would occur tomorrow or Friday. There were no official ceremonies at the send-off.

The aviators arose at 4 o'clock and at five were at the airdrome getting their machines ready and waiting to see what sort of weather would follow the dawn, since it has been uncertain heretofore.

There were no British or American officials present at the take-off. It is understood they will make their farewells to the airmen at Kirwall where it is expected six British planes will act as an escort to their American brother airmen.

Brough is a tiny village but practically everybody in it turned out and stood by long before daybreak until the aviators finally winged away from the town where they had been such welcome guests.

RICH MACON WOMAN DISAPPEARS IN FLA.

(By The Associated Press)

TAMPA, July 29.—R. L. Dickson, local automobile salesman was arrested here today and is being held at police headquarers without bond, pending the outcome of the investigation of the disappearance of Mrs. W. J. Dickson, forty-five, his sister-in-law, wealthy matron of Macon, Ga., who has been missing since Friday morning. Police say they are working on a report that a woman's corpse was secretly taken out of the city early yesterday morning and carried to a point in the country where it was buried.

Dickson accompanied the woman to Tampa last Thursday. He said he left her at a local hotel. When he called for her the next morning she could not be found.

"We are firmly convinced that Mrs. Dickson met with foul play at the hands of persons who wish to obtai npossession of her property in Macon," declared Chief of Detectives H. D. Pearson this morning. Dickson said, they reported, that his relative had been in an asylum in Georgia but was not insane having been placed there by relatives who wished to gain the property for themselves.

Drives out Roaches to be swept up dead

Modern preparation assures housewife her home is free from pests

At last the careful housewife can know that her home is free from roaches and other insect pests. Heretofore her efforts along this line have been attended with disquieting uncertainties. Just when she believed the last roach was dead, along would come another to prove her work was in vain.

Now the modern home-maker merely sprays Dethol thoroughly into the crevices where she believes roaches are hiding—and then waits a few seconds to see them come running out, where a few more sprays quickly destroy the last one.

Due to the fact that Dethol is a liquid spray, it penetrates even the tiniest cracks, along baseboards and around kitchen drains, where roaches hide and breed. The first few sprays destroy any unseen eggs and send the adult roaches scurrying out into the open to be killed with ease. Periodic sprayings with Dethol insure the fact that your home is absolutely free from these disgusting pests.

Dethol is the modern, efficient destroyer of all insect life. It kills flies, mosquitoes, roaches, ants, moths, bedbugs, etc.—positively, and at slight cost. It does not stain.

Sprayed lightly on windows, tubs, tile, marble, enamel ware, etc., Dethol also cleans like magic—you simply wipe off the sprayed articles with a damp rag. Sprayed in musty places about the home, Dethol sweetly purifies and disinfects the air.

Drug, grocery, hardware and department stores sell Dethol in the handy combination package—complete with sprayer and large can of liquid—for 85c.

You really cannot afford to be without Dethol. If your dealer hasn't Dethol, we will send you the combination package, post free, on receipt of one dollar. Dethol Mfg. Co., Inc., Richmond, Va.

BIRTH

Of a New Literary Form Forecast in Books Soon to Be Published.

By THE NEA BOOK SURVEY

At last America seems set for the literary renaissance which has been on its way these many years.

Despite signs of reaction in other spheres of our national life, the new literature seems to have caught on. And with it comes a revival that will leave its mark imprinted, not only in the book, but in the mind.

Not only in the writings slated for fall and winter publication are evidences of the impending change to be found. They can be found in the expression of those millions whose writing is usually limited to a short letter or a picture-postcard notation.

When they take to the expressionism of the newer writers, and fill their notes or scribblings with terse, direct words, punctuated with the inevitable dots and dashes, then a new literary upheaval has been successfully weathered. For nothing short of a revolution could have changed the ponderous, word-osity of the average letter-writer.

Following is an example of this new trend in our writing. It is a piece laboriously picked out on a typewriter by a young artisan, whose days are spent in aphotographic dark room, and his nights in a tenement district of New York's East Side. He is untrained, uncutured, uncouth. Yet he writes of himself in a note to a friend:

"Broke. Have yo uever been broke in New York? A furnished room. Hunger. God, what misery! My only consoation. The violin. I play "Thais." What a classic! It makes even the player cry.

"Snap—A string broke. Misery loves company. No money to buy a new string. A walk through the park. Where can I get some money? Seven million people live around me. Yet I am alone and friendless. I drift to the Bowery. Missionaries and hock shops, 15-cent lodging houses and 50-cent prostitutes. Where the scum of the world gathers when licked.

"I start to walk back to my dingy room. If I only had some money. A coffee and rolls. And 15 cents for a violin string. A pawnshop. "We buy and sell anything," the sign reads. But I have nothing to sell.

"I put my finger in my mouth. A gold cap on a back tooth. I pull it back and forth. It is loose. I try to take it out. Not so easy. It hurts ....blood....try a little harder. Off comes the gold cap.

"Into the pawnshop. "Give me a dollar for this?" I ask the Shylock. "Too much," he answer sunconcerned. I start to saunter out. "I'll give you a quarter," the pawnbroker offers. A moment hesitation. I take the quarter.

"Coffee and rolls in a sweltering one-arm restaurant. A cigaret would be a comfort. Only 15 cents left. Shall it be cigarets or a violin string. Music hath charm. It wins. I buy the string. Broke again.

"The rooming house [illegible]ive. A gas hall light flick[illegible]gh th ebroken window of t[illegible]or. I must walk gently. [illegible]ly must not hear. She'll [illegible]nt. And I'm broke.

"My room. The violin only friend. The new string is in place. I must play quietly. The landlady must not hear. I put the mute on the fiddle. Turn out the light. What'll I play? "Humoresque." A laugh while my heart is crying ...."

A list of other books to be released by the same publishing house includes: Waldo R. Browne's "Altgeld of Illinois," the governor who was in the political limelight some 30 years ago; another volume of Gerhart Hauptmann's poetic dramas, a critical study of Leonid Andreyev, by Alexander Kaun; a history of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, written by Louis Levine; three plays by Francis Neilson, president of the Drama league, and a volume on "Genius and the Shor story," by Frances Newman.

DETAILS MINISTER'S MURDER RECEIVED

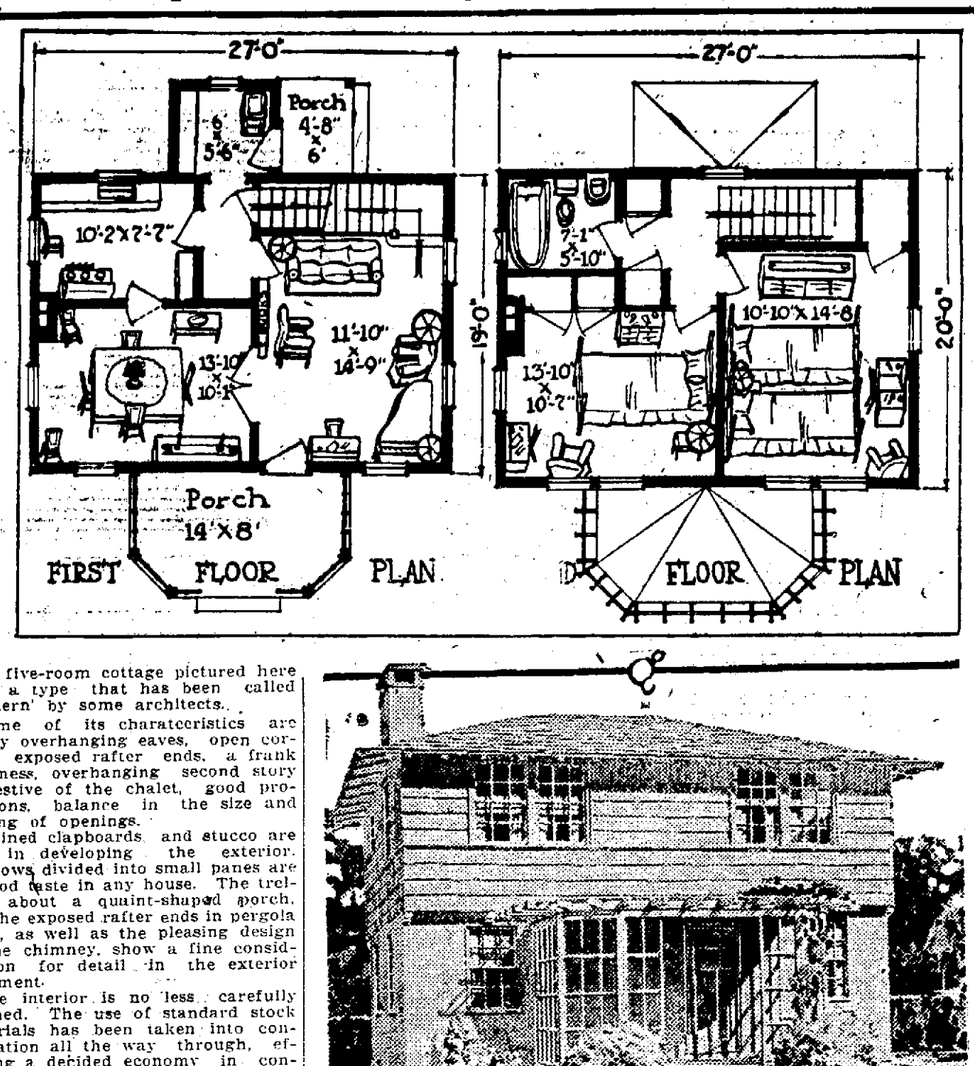

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, July 29—Details of the killing of the Rev. Douglas Byers, in charge of the evangelistic work at the Presbyterian mission at Kachek, Island of Hainan on June 24, were received today by the board of foreign missions of the Presbyterian church.

The information contained in a letter sent to Miss Margaret M Moninger, secretary of the Hainen mission, the day after the murder, said that the Rev. Mr. Byers and his wife and children were alone in the station when four ruffians entered the compound and carried him away. He refused to go and was shot in the abdomen and killed. The other members of his family were uninjured.

This is not a general anti-foreign uprising nor an attack on the station," Miss Boninger wrote. "It seems to be a frustrated attempt to secure ransom."

Simple Little Cottage of "Western" Type

Courtesy, Curtis Companies, Clinton, Ia.

FONT VIEW AND FLOOR PLANS OF FIVE-ROOM WESTERN HOME.

The five-room cottage pictured here is of a type that has been called "western" by some architects.

Some of its charateeristics are widely overhanging eaves, open cornice, exposed rafter ends, a frank plainness, overhanging second story suggestive of the chalet, good proportions, balance in the size and placing of openings.

Stained clapboards and stucco are used in developing the exterior. Windows divided into small panes are in good taste in any house. The trellises about a quaint-shaped porch, and the exposed rafter ends in pergola effect, as well as the pleasing design of the chimney, show a fine consideration for detail in the exterior treatment.

The interior is no less carefully planned. The use of standard stock materials has been taken into consideration all the way through, effecting a decided economy in construction.

One enters directly into the living room which occupies one side of the first floor, with the stairway at the rear of it. French doors open into the dining room also at the front of the house, making both rooms lighter and more spacious.

Good light and small size help make the kitchen pleasant. Note the convenient arrangement of the basement steps, below the main flight. An outside entry is provided for the refrigerator and handy storage shleves.

There are two bedrooms, each with a front ocation and cross-ventilation. The bathroom and several closets, one of which is fitted with removable trays, complete the second floor layout.

This little cottage is planned for economy, but for the sort of economy that provides conveniences and comfort for the owners. Part of the joy of iving in it comes from the joy of living in it comes from the knowledge that passersby also "like its looks."

The cost of this house is estimated at $4915, for the average community, figuring 30 cents a cubic foot.

FIFTEEN INJURED IN RAIL COLLISION

CHARLOTTE, N. C., July 29.—The collision between a passenger car and a freight train on the Piedmont and Northern electric railroad near here today which injured fifteen persons, several of them seriously, and three probably fatally, was attributed tonight to confusion of orders on the part of trainmen, according to officials of the road, though they said they could not complete their investigation of the accident until the trainmen injured in the wreck recovered sufficiently to be questioned.

Most of the injured were in hospitals here tonight, though two or three only slightly injured, left the hospitals this morning for their homes. All were rushed to hospitals immediately following the crash, which occurred about two miles from Charlotte, when the passenger car going to Gastonia crashed head-on into the electric locomotive of the freight train, coming toward Charlotte. The accident occurred on a slight curve. The passenger car was smashed in by the impact of the freight train.

LIQUOR TESTED ON RATS LANDS COUPLE IN JAIL

OMAHA, Neb., July 29.—Thirteen sleek rates, penned in a cage in a chemist's laboratory, were instrumental in government agents obtaining conviction of an Omaha man and his wife on a liquor selling charge, with subsequent sentence of a year in jail and a heavy fine for each federal court.

The question of sampling the liquor which the pair sold was brought up in court, and to determine whether it was fit for human consumption, the agents submitted it to a chemist. He fed it to the rats and then watched their reaction.

The rodents displayed many of the characteristics of an intoxicated human, the chemist reported. Not one died, rather they all lived, he declared on hte witness stand. Although defense counsel questioned the admissibility of the experiment as evidence, it was allowed to stand as indicating the potency and possibilities of the liquor for beverage purposes.

GENERAL CAMPAIGN AGAINST ANTHRAX

(By The Associated Press)

MEMPHIS, July 29.—A general campaign against anthrax, or charbon, was inaugurated in the south central states today under the direction of State Veterinarians and county and municipal health officers.

Whether he federal government will lend financial assistance in fightin gthe disease in Mississippi, Arkansas and Tennessee was not known tonight. Local authorities said they had received no response to their appeal yesterday to Secretary Wallace but indicated that further efforts would be made to gai nthe aid of the department of agriculture in the fight against the disease, which has caused the death of more than a score of persons and the loss of thousands of animals.

At present, it was stated, the work of veterinarians in the field is restricted by the lack of funds. The campaign thus far has been financed by individuals, the states in the affected area having no appropriations available for the work.

Reports received here oday from the infected areas of Mississippi and Arkansas, only added to the seriousness of the situation presented at the conference of officals of the states affected yesterday. Apparently the disease has been most the destructive in the delta section of Mississippi where it was said planters have lost thousands of mules needed in the cultivation of crops.

Experts of the Memphis farm division bureau who volunteered their assistance in fighting the disease said today there was little hope of eradicating anthrax this year. They pointed that the disease had gained considerable headway and complete eradication probably will not be attained until next fall.

Cool weather and particularly frost it was said, will kill out the disease. It is planned, to wage a relentless campaign during the winter and spring in an effort to prevent a recurrence of the disease next summer.

COUNT MORONER AND WIFE PEGGY, SUE EACH OTHER

Husband Asks Annulment of Marriage, Show Girl Wants to Recover $10,000

(By The Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, July 30.—A suit against her for annulment of her marriage, a counter suit by her for separation and testimony as a witness in the trial of a prominent lawyer for alleged bribery of a juror figured in the life yesterday of Countess Gosta Morner, formerly Peggy Hopkins Joyce, show girl and former wife of two millionaires

The countess first attracted a crowded courtroom when she appeared as a witness for the government in the trial of William J. Fallon for the bribery of Charles W. Rendigs in the Gregory-Durrell mail fraud case in 1922.

She told of a party with Fallon at an inn where he left the table for a few minutes before dinner was served. The government is attempting to establish that it was in this interval that Fallon paid Rendigs $1,000

When Fallon conducted his cross-examination she plaintively admitted that she was not positive about the date of the dinner but was positive he left the table before dinner "because she was hungry" and sent a waiter to fetch him. Amid the laughter of the courtroom she then admitted she might have imagined the time he was absent as longer than it really was for that very reason.

Countess Morner left the spotlight of the courtroom through the judge's chamber to step immediately into a part that focused more attention on her than her previous role

An attorney was waiting to serve papers in a suit for annulment by her husband. She hurried to her lawyers and immediately drew up papers for a counter suit which also asked for the recovery of $10,000 she alleged she had spent on the count in their brief married life.

Count Morner at his club late last night stated she had spent no money on him, that he had sacrificed his business for her and finally had filed the suit in desperation after she had not appeared at home for over twenty-four hours

The count and Peggy Joyce were married in Atlantic City a few months ago, coming to New York two days later

For two days, while stopping at a fashionable hotel, they were besieged by photographers and reporters, only to drop almost completely out of sight when they moved to the countess' small apartment

Rumors of differences between them had been afloat for some time and they were confined late last night by the count, who stated that they began at the time of their marriage.

He stated that he was disinclined to file a suit for some time, due to his desire to keep his wife from obtaining notoriety but that her inclination to capitalize his name and title on the stage after promising she would not and her intention of publishing a story that she had supplied him with funds, together with her absence from home overnight without coming with him, made him take this action.

The Countess Morner could not be reached for a statement.

State Attorney Crowe Loses In First Skirmish

not be permitted to go into evidence of insanity and demanded to know from the state whether it had any authority to show that would prevent him from hearing evidence as to the state of mind or in mitigation.

After the argument had lasted ninety minutes and gotten back to the State's accusation that the defense was trying to plead both sane and insane at the same time, Walter Bachrach suggested that "an hour and a half had been wasted."

"No," said Judge Caverly, "it has not been wasted. The court will take a day and a half on this if necessary."

(By The Associated Press)

CHICAGO, July 30.—The court room filled rapidly this morning for the seventh session of the hearing of Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, kidnaper-slayers of Robert Franks, expecting startling and dramatic events in connection with the state' sresting and the opening by the defense.

An all night rain left a sultry atmosphere and it was hot and muggy in the court room.

Jacob Franks, father of the slain lad, was absent from the court room but all the other interested relatives were in their seats before court opened.

The defendants came into the room with their customary morning smiles for their attorneys and relatives

Judge Caverly called the attorneys to the bench and consulted with them as to separate hearings on the kidnaping charge. It developed that thus far the hearing had technically been confined to the murder charge. The attorneys agreed that 30 minutes of formalities would suffice to dispose of the kidnaping indictment.

Dr. William A. White, of Washington, D. C., then was called to the stand as first witness for the defense. He was questioned by Walter Bachrach of defense counsel.

"State your professional experience," said Mr. Bachrach.

"I object," said Mr. Crowe.

"Why?" asked Judge Caverly and the big legal fight of the proceedings was on.

Citizens Training Camp at Fort Monroe Breaks Up

JUDGE CAVERLY'S RECORD SHOWS HIM SEVERE MAN

CHICAGO, July 30.—The ears of the nation will be attuned within a short time to catch the words of Chief Justice John Richard Caverly, sixty-three, Catholic, Democrat, Knight of Columbus, when he issues his jjudgment in the Leopold-Loeb "thrill and adventure" murder of "Bobbie" Franks.

Since September, 1923, Judge Caverly, elected to the circuit bench, has been Chief Justice of the Criminal Branch The Circuit Judges take annual terms in cleaning up crime. He will be succeeded next September by another judge.

For twenty-five years he has been on the heels of crime as Prosecutor and Magistrate. Born in London in 1861 of an Irish father and English mother, he was brought to this country when an infant In the Annunciation Parochial School, St Patrick's Academy and the Lake Forest Law School, he fitted himself for his struggle with life

It was a struggle, for Caverly was poor and unknown He was thirty-six years old when he was graduated from law school Previous to this he had starved around in law offices, studying statutes and dipping in politics In fact he was a politician before he was a lawyer, and a very successful politician he proved, for he never flaunted himself in the Democsatic limelight, but he was a power in the secret conferences.

Lectured Camera Men.

Judge Caverly is below the medium height, stocky and square of figure. His movements are quick He has an eighteenth century face, one that can be seen peering out of a canvas of Reynolds or Gainsborough. All that is necessary to make it Georgian is the tie wig. He needs no wig, for he has a thatch of iron-gray hair that stands up in pompadour and curls. It falls down his brow and sets off the placid, smooth-shaven features, peculiarly Celtic.

The only interruption to this judicial calm came twice during the hearing last week One was when a police officer displayed two automatics, found in the Leopold home. The muzzle was toward the Chief Justice. "Turn them away, perhaps they are loaded now," he said as he moved out of range The second time was when he was aroused by the give-an-inch-and-take-a-mile attitude of photographers He read them a lecture.

The judge has been giving gun toters some hard blows Robbery with guns has brought long sentences from him He cancelled 500 permits obtained by gunmen and citizens from Justices of the Peace throughout the country.

Bucketshop swindlers found no leniency in his court, for the judge is particularly set against men who victimize the poor. One of his first acts when he took up his work in the criminal court was to fight swindling bondsmen. He looked up the record and found more than $2,000,000 in forfeited bonds on which but a perfunctory attempt had been made to collect.

He has started a fight for the collection of all bonds possible, and announced he believed he could build a new Criminal Court Building from this source of income.

He doesn't believe in coddling criminals. He once recommended "the sending of every criminal to the penitentiary and the hanging of every murderer."

Judge Caverly was the sitting magistrate in the trial of Harvey Church, the country boy from Wisconsin who killed two automobile dealers to get the expensive car they were trying to sell him. Church went to his death two years ago.

Then came the notorious Heffernan-Cramer gang to stand trial for the murder of Joseph Lanus, wealthy automobile dealer They entered pleas of "not guilty" and their trial was one of the hardest fought in the local courts.

Finally a jury found them guilty and fixed their punishment as death Two weeks later Judge Caverly imposed death sentences.

The case was carried to the Illinois Supreme court and a technical error in the record of the proceedings caused that body to overrule the lower court's findings. A subsequent trial before Judge Wells M Cook resulted in life terms in Joliet Penitentiary.

A few months ago Judge Caverly created a precedent in local criminal history by bringing two colored highwaymen to trial for the murder of a policeman within a month after the killing.

Judge Caverly listened to the pleas of the men for mercy and then arose from the bench and thundered "Death" in his cold voice across the bar. One month later the men were hanged.

The judge has always maintained that the defendants should be given every opportunity to prove their innocence and that the prosecuting officials should be careful in their efforts to send men to prison and the gallows.

But when the verdict of a jury was given the judge has always displayed firmness in upholding convictions.

Governor Trinkle Concurs In Report

immediate purposes or to permit the slightest suspicion that the same was being used."

"I have recommended to Mr. Lee that he go over each and every phase of his department's work in order that he may free the departments of any lines of endeavor as well as any employes who were not actually needed in the proper work of the departments," the governor continued, "and I am sure that this recommendation will be carried out to the letter. In this connection I would also say that I am required by a resolution of the house of delegates to make a study of the state personnel situation in Virginia in all departments and I have directed the budget director to go into the matter fully in connection with these departments

"My understanding is that the work of surveying the streams, although a valuable one to the state and the department, has been discontinued, as suggested by the majority report.

"The department of carp control has also been discontinued at the suggestion of the majority report although from what I understand from such investigation as I have made, I am fearful that this work should not be abandoned.

"My investigation leads me to the belief that it is absolutely necessary for the state to maintain a police patrol boat. I know that the Commodore Maury has been in service for some time, that it is rather expensive to maintain and I have up with Mr Lee through the months the matter of securing a new boat which could be more economically operated in lieu of the Commodore Maury. I further know that Mr. Lee has been endeavoring to locate such a boat but so far ahs not been able to secure one at a price the state could afford to pay He is being urged to continue the search for a boat which wil serve the purpose and can be more economically operated. It is hard for those who do not understand the work of the department of fisheries to appreciate the needs and necessities of this department in order to make it properly function.

"Mr. Lee informs me that the recommendation contained in the majority report relative to the field secretary will be followed although in his judgment and his knowledge of the situation he personally feels that this is a mistake."

The report recommended the office be abolished

"I might also say that one of the rooms at Murphy's Hotel was given up some time since and the other room will be given up on August 1. Mr Lee in the future occupying the office provided for him in the new state office building," the governor said.

In the charges of extravagance against the commissioner, it was alleged that these rooms were unnecessary.

"Of course, it has been impossible for me to keep up with each and every detail of the expenditures of the department of game and inland fisheries," the governor resumed, "but I have always felt that it was the intention of the general assembly that funds collected by this department was to be used in the reasonable and wise furtherance of the work of the department and I have known no better souce to go to for information as to what expenditures were proper and necessary than to Mr Lee, the head of the department, and to Mr Hart the assistant commissioner, in whose judgment I have had confidence

"In the handling of a department of this nature it necessarily involves the question of the exercise of the best judgement on the part of those who have the work in hand and I feel sure that both Mr. Lee and Mr. Hart have endeavored to do only those things they conceive to be for the best of the work and if they have made mistakes, they have been mistakes of judgment and not of intent.

"I want to reiterate as I have done in both my addresses to the general assembly that the department of game and inland fisheries and all other departments should be under the budget system but the general assembly has seen fit not to adopt this suggestion so far."

In rejecting the minority report, which found Commissioner Lee guilty of extravagance and misconduct in office and recommended his removal from office, Governor Trinkle said: "I am lead to the conclusion that there is nothing for me to do but to receive and concur in the majority report, signed by five of the seven members of the committee and allow the same to stand as giving the true result of the investigation."

The majority report was signed by Senator Holman Willis, Roanoke, Senator W O Rogers, Waverly; Delegate Q. C Davis, Norfolk county, Delegate W R Cato, Emporia, and Delegate C R. Warren, Pittsylvania, the later certain reservations Delegate R W Bragg, of Brunswick, and Senator R H. Stubbs, of Middlesex, who brought the charges, signed the minority report.

DENIAL IS MADE POLICE DID NOT TRY TO RESCUE

Claim One Officer Killed and Others Wounded in Endeavor to Save Imbrie

(By The Associated Press.)

LONDON, July 30.—According to the Morning Post, the Persian legation here is in receipt of an official statement from Teheran declaring that, contrary to other advices, the Persian police made a great effort to rescue Major Imbrie, the American vice consul, who was killed by a mob in the Persian capital July 18. One policeman was killed in this endeavor and several were injured, it was stated.

Far from neglecting their duty by failing to prevent the crowd from breaking into the hospital where Major Imbrie had been removed, it is declared the police actually arrested practically everybody implicated in the hospital attack.

The government stated that some days prior to the disturbance much sectarian feeling was manifest among the participants in the religious demonstrations going on in Teheran. The police and soldiers, therefore, had been cautioned to avoid any action tending to aggravate the over-excited state of the crowds, the government not for a moment anticipating that grounds would arise for an attack on foreign residents. It was in view of this, the statement says, that the police withheld firing upon the mob when Major Imbrie was attacked.

J. D. Hank Jr. Found Dead In Bed Early Today By His Sister

(By The Associated Press)

RICHMOND, Va., July 30.— Josiah D. Hank, Jr., former assistant attorney general of Virginia, was found dead in bed this morning at his home here. Death, which occurred about twenty-four hours previously, was from natural causes. Coroner J M. Whitfield held.

Mr. Hank, who was in his fiftieth year, was found by a daughter upon her return from uckroe each. Mrs Hank and her three other children are in Washington where they went last Saturday. esides the widow and children, the former assistant attorney general is survived by two brothers, Wailes Hank of Norfolk, and the Rev. P. M Hank, of Richmond.

Mr. Hank resigned his state office last April. Although he had constantly refused to commit himself it was generally believed he intended to oppose Attorney General Saunders in the next primary. He had been engaged in private law practice since his resignation. He was commander of the capital district of Kiwanis Clubs in 1921.

WHOOPING COUGH FATAL

Whooping cough with complications claimed another little victim at three o'clock this morning when William Virgil Moore, three months' old son of Mr. and Mrs J L. Rev. Joseph Dunglinson will officiate

College Avenue Nuisance to Be Ended at Once

The municipal authorities this morning took definite steps to remove a menace to health in the College Avenue section which has been the source of complain for some months past The condition complained of is an open sewer on in the extremity of the street, this discharging at the eath's surface in swampy ground Since the advent of hot weather the nuisance has become pronounced in more ways than one and efforts made by one resident, he says, for six months to secure its elimination were resumed on a more formidable scale A petition was prepared yesterday this setting forth the condition and to be circulated among the residents of the street, and asking the local authorities to cope with he situation at once because of the menace presented by the possible contraction of typhoid fever which might readily develop from this source

Before action could be taken however the matter was presented to F W. Townes, chairman of the public works committee and the city health office also took it up with the result that Engineer Linville was instructed by the committee chairman to abandon other work and to take immediate steps to clear up a bad situation The surface pipe will be removed and proper steps taken to convey the sewage from the one house in question to an outlet where health will not be menaced The task may take three or four days but there was every indication this morning that no time would be lost in meeting the objections already raised

It was pointed out by Mr Townes that the surface pipe has been there for years and that it presented no menace at the time for the point where it discharged was isolated until the development of building in that section had brought other homes within its immediate neighborhood

In Tar and Feather Plot

Mrs. Lloyd Shank (left) of Frederick, Md., believing Dorothy Grandon, 21, had stolen her husband's love, took matters into her own hands Aided by a mob of 50 prominent citizens of Frederick, she dragged her rival into the country, near Myersburg, Md., and, under the glare of automobile headlights, beat her severely, then administered a coat of tar and feathers. Now Mrs. Shank is facing a penitentiary term of 18 months to 10 years.

Fairmont People Pledge Aid to Warehouse Owner

J. E Neal who with M. O. Nelson of this city owned "Neal's New Warehouse" at Fairmont, N. C., destroyed by fire early Tuesday morning, arrived from that town last night bringing details of the blaze which wiped out the new wooden structure which was to have been opened for business next week

Mr. Neal states that there is no clue as to how the fire caught this point being one which probably will never be determined The fire broke out apparently in the middle of the building at two o'clock in the morning and burned both ways with such rapidity that the structure was demolished within thirty minutes. It was of wood construction and was a ready prey. The town has a small fire department facilities not being sufficient to cope with a fire of this size Consequently they could do little effective work though they made a game effort.

Mr. Nelson stated today that he will leave tomorrow for Fairmont to take stock of the situation and to make arrangements for the early tobacco season. He was greatly gratified this morning by the receipt of a telegram signed by the mayor and prominent business men of Fairmont expressing their regret over the disaster and pledging themselves to provide a place for Mr. Nelson and his partner so that they may sell tobacco at Fairmont. E J Davis of Martinsville, who also operates a house at Fairmont has also communicated with Mr. Nelson expressing his keen regret and offering to be of service.

The warehouse was adequately insured, Mr. Nelson states and he also is fortunate enough to have a policy of insurance covering loss of business and the payment of salaries and wages to employees, definitely contracted for during the season The actual financial loss therefore will not be quite as heavy as was first indicated.

Following is the text of the telegram received today from the people of Fairmont:

"We, the undersigned business men and citizens of Fairmont, very much deplore the destruction by fire of your beautiful warehouse in our good town. We hereby solicit, beg and earnestly desire that you gentlemen remain in business here by taking over a part or all of the Jones warehouse, which has been tendered you, guaranteeing you our hearty support.

"We are yours truly.

(Signed) H. G Mitchell, Mayor: A. S. Thompson, O. I. Floyd, V W. Keith, G. W. Turner, J. B. Ashley, W. C Ashley, P. R. Lloyd, W. F. Mitchell, N. A. Andrews, A. J. Floyd, N. W. Jenkins and company, A. F. Floyd, First National Bank, Webster Motor company, Roberson Drug company, Stephens and Barne, Inc., E. G. Floyd and company, Roberson Hardware company, S. B. Pittman and company, C S. McKinsie, Floyd and Floyd, F. C. Jones, A. R. Bullock, C. F. Ashley, C. A. Floyd, Fairmont Furniture company, W. A Griffith, Page Bros., C. E McCormich, S. G. Floyd.

The above message from Fairmont was followed later in the day by an urgent telegram from Lumberton, N. C., 11 miles from Fairmont, urging the Danville warehousemen to locate in that city for the season, offering them rent free. Mr. Nelson indicated that he would return to Fairmont and conduct a warehouse there

HERO

Robert G. Welsh, Dramatic Critic, Dies a Greater Hero Than Any of Stage

BY THE NEA PLAY JURY

NEW YORK, July 30.—For 15 years Bob Welsh watched others parade in the role of hero. As a dramatic critic he lived in a world of make-believe where all the virtues of humankind are magnified under a beating white light.

And now in his death, Bob Welsh stands in a white light brighter than any that ever flooded a stage. None of the heroes he ever praised was as noble as he.

Bob was on vacation in Bermuda. Two girls in bathing were caught in a rteacherous undertow, an undertow too strong, too tricky to be braved by the best of swimmers.

Bob went to the rescue of the girls. One was saved. One drowned and Welsh drowned with her.

No death but that of hero could have been fitting to the life that Welsh led

ROBERT GILBERT WELSH

He was known as the fairest of all New York critics. A brilliant writer, he never sacrificed a player's name or his own sense of fair play to the turning of a sparkling phrase

Bob saw good in everything. His most famous poem was a tribute to the Angel of Death. He believed that even under the wings of that Angel on could see silver

Welsh started in life as an assistant librarian in a publishing house But his first love was the drama. He read all the plays and all the books about plays he could find At 28 he became assistant dramatic editor of the Evening Telegram Two years later he became dramatic editor and, except for the period of his war service, continued in that capacity until his death.

Half in jest and half in earnest, he once complained that he had no hope of being a dignified critic because everyone he met would slap him on the back and call him "Bobby" within five minutes of their introduction.

Except for the back-slapping, this juror pleads guilty to such familiarity. But of all the New York critics Bob Welsh was the only one to call this writer by his nickname, to wave a greeting across the theater, to appear as an ordinary mortal rather than a tin-winged god sitting in austere judgment of his fellow man on the other side of the footlights.

And because Bob looked always for the virtues in mortals, he doubtless saw the silver under the wings of the Angel of Death as he entered upon his heroic journey to immortality.

Another Co-Op Payment In Few Weeks Expected

Several hundred checks included in the number sent by the Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Marketing Association to the Danville pooling centre for distribution have not been claimed and local officials are anxious that those who have not called at Producers' warehouse should do so without further delay in order that they may be disposed of. Disappointment is expected among a number of the farmers over the size of the payment which was 25 per cent. of the first payment and which had been expected to be about fifty per cent. is being offset by the report emanating from Richmond that a further payment similar in size to that just made will be forthcoming "within a few weeks."

This point, it is understood, is to be cleared up definitely today at a meeting of the board of directors of the organization which is being held at Richmond and which is being attended by E L. Walton and W. E Gardner. Some definite announcement is looked for during the course of this evening

WORK TO BEGIN AT ONCE ON NEW CEMETERY LAND

Burial Ground to Be Beautified and Will Be Ready For Use in the Fall

The city engineer and the chairman of the public works committee are taking steps to develop the new North Danville cemetery on the Chatham road which was acquired by the city several months ago but which has been awaiting the carrying out of a general scheme of improvement before being utilized. Plans have been received from Hare and Hare, landscape architects of Kansas City, employed by the city to develop the tract and these will be carried out in part without further delay. It will probably cost the city $100,000 to develop the whole tract. No such expense is anticipated immediately as the city will improve only one section of it, leaving subsequent development to be carried out as the plots are required. The whole area will be fenced in and driveways will be laid out. Immediate beautification will be undertaken at the entrance gates, the blue prints calling for the planting of shrubbery and the laying out of two small lakes which will enhance the new cemetery's appearance.

The purpose is to carry out the same plan as that in evidence in a cemetery at Roanoke. The graves instead of being raised mounds will be flush with the turf and instead of tombstones more or less ornate, simple markers at the head and foot alone will be permitted, thus giving uniformity to the cemetery as a whole.

The cemetery will not be ready for general use until some of the improvements have been made. However, in the present emergency which finds the North Danville cemetery, Leemont, virtually filled, the sexton has been authorized to sell plats in the first parcel of land closest to the entrance The general scale of prices for these squares has not been arrived at by the committee, but will be before this fall.

LEAVES FOR CINCINNATI.

Mrs Charles L. Garrison left this morning for Cincinnati, where she will be joined by her daughter, Miss Catherine, who has been visiting in central Kentucky. After a week's visit with friends in Cincinnati, they will go to Eminence, Ky., and spend the remainder of the month of August with Mrs Garrison's parents. Miss Catherine is a member of the senior class of the University of Kentucky.

AUTOMOBILE CRIMES

In recent weeks, Virginia and the Carolinas, have been stirred by a number of murders that might be termed automobile crimes.

Major Samuel McLeary en route from Norfolk to Fort Moultrie, S. C., disappeared. After weeks of search the long arm of the law reached out and pulled into its clutches an ex-soldier and deserter of the Army and Marine Corps, a mountaineer from the Blue Ridge district, one Mortimer N. King, who in turn implicated Sherrod, alias Frank, Harrell. In the course of the workings of the law the body of McLeary was found near the roadside in the vicinity of Cheraw, S. C., and the automobile in which the major was making the trip to his South Carolina post was found near Asheville.

On the morning of July 19th, Thomas B. Cavan met his death, it was found by the coroner's jury, at Richmond through the reckless and careless driving of an automobile in which it is alleged Robert Alley and John Cross were riding. Another occupant of the Cavan car was also fatally injured.

Monday it was revealed that a public service driver of Hollister, N. C., was robbed and murdered near that place. Suspects are held in connection with the crime. Joyner, the murdered man, had been hired by the men to take them to a spot some distance in the country Saturday night. He never returned from his trip and search Monday revealed his body with three bullet wounds in it not far from the road. The car was found in the same community. A mob threatenened violence to these held in connection with the killing but a little level headed reasoning on the part of the authorities averted any trouble nad possibly another murder, while not quite so wanton as the former, murder nevertheless.

THE AIR MAIL SERVICE

The dream of many ultra-progressives is at last an accomplished fact. The air mail service is being steadily and systematically maintained from the eastern shores of the United States to the western boundaries of this great country. Day and night the huge aerial mail carriers drone steadily eastward and westward across the plains and mountains that separate New York and San Francisco. The first period of the service initiated early in July was completed without a hitch and without a delay. Miles were eaten up while the populace slumbered and the east and west were brought nearer made more neighborly and the continent bound into a more compact and unified whole.

Great lighted pathways mark the trail between Chicago and Wyoming to guide the postmen of the air on their way. Every precaution to insure the safety of the men who pit their way through the darkness to the droning accompaniment of the powerful aeroplane engines has been taken and in consequence the western shores of the United States have been brought many hundreds of miles nearer the eastern coast line. In former years where days were required to to communicate with those in the far west, once an almost unknown and unheralded stretch of mountain fastness and sun-scorched deserts, hours are now necessary to link them one to the other.

The more compact a country is as a unit the more impregnable is its borders, the stronger its commercial system and the more happy and contented and understanding its citizenship. To what extent the air mail has added to this phase of America's life cannot be definitely estimated or measured now but it is certain that it has added something.

BIOGRAPHY GOING TO SEED

Gossip is the small change of social currency, and the world more often has 20 nickel anecdotes than a single dollar fact. This explains the charm of biography. Biography is an art, and a very fine art when it is used to enlighten for posterity the methods, purposes and achievements of worthy leadership.

Biography, of late, has been going to seed. Never were personal confessions so plentiful, and certainly never in such bad taste. It seems that reticence is in decay, that privacy exists no longer for the diarist, and that the chief purpose of social intercourse is to collect full-flavored anecdotes for a gossip-book.

There is only justification for autobiography when the subject either has occupied a distinctive and influential position in public affairs or has been brought into intimate contact with those who have. The surprising thing about every, or almost every, current biography, is the tremendous amount of information each writer has about other people, and the very little information he has about himself. This may be modesty, and again it may be insignificance; we suspect the latter.

It is said the golden bait for anecdotel memories is very enticing—so enticing that every unwilling Johnson has his watchful Boswell, not always, however, weaving a halo but occasionally forging a pronged fork out of the malleable metal of scandal. When a biography is sought, it is sought with the expectation that there will be something quotable in the smoking room, or in other circles of similar seclusion. Nor is the practice of revelation confined to the dead, as in a former age; today the living may wake up any morning and find the world laughing or whispering over the color of his shirts or his misadventures as an occasional Romeo.

While this state of affairs remains, the biography will languish in disrepute among honorable letters. We have something to learn from the life of Abraham Lincoln, but nothing that is worthy from Mrs. Asquith, and for one book equivalent to a Lincoln analysis there are twenty Mrs. Asquiths. More's the pity.

John Ainsley, Master Thief

BY

Arthur Somers Roche

Copyright 1924, NEA Service Inc.

THE LAST EPISODE

BEGIN HERE TODAY

John Ainsley, a man of education and breeding, becomes a master crook—preying upon other thieves. Swede Thomassen, a brutal murderer, is killed in Ainsley's apartment by the White Eagle, a notorious international crook. While the police search for Ainsley—or rather for "Robert Stickney"—he is preparing to sail for Australia.

In the Trevor dining room Ainsley overhears a distraught young man tell his pretty girl companion that he intends to kill himself. Ainsley finds out that the young man is a thief and that his thievery will be discovered next morning. Tirrel has robed the safe of his employer, Phineas Garbon, a speculator. Ainsley gives Tirrell $10,000 to make up for the thivery. Going to Garbon's office, they find the employer's body on the floor. Garbon has been murdered. And the housekeeper says that Garbon went to his office to see Tirrel. So circumstantial evidence turns toward the innocent Tirrell as the murderer.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"How many people know that you are Garbon's confidential clerk?" I asked.

"Hundreds, I suppose," he answered dully.

"How many of them are of the temperament that would make you suspect them capable of murder?"

"How can I possibly answer that?" he retorted.

I nodded. Of course, a boy like this would not be a reader of character.

"Do you know anyone who could imitate your voice?" I asked.

"It isn't hard to do, is it?" he retorted. The shock of the tragedy had almost stupefied him.

"It's extremely hard." I told him. "You've been working for Garbon several years. The person whose voice imposed upon him so that he believed it yours must have been an excellent mimic."

A light flickered in his eyes. "Poganni told me today that he used to be an actor," he cried.

Gamblers are crooked professional gamblers, that is. Poganni knew Garbon and his confidential clerk.

TIRRELL SENT HIS OPPONENT TO THE FLOOR.

Of course, a hundred other shady characters might have known the dead man. But only today Poganni had accepted a wager of ten thousand dollars from Tirrell. The sum of money might readily have aroused Poganni's cupidity. It would turn his thoughts upon Garbon and his safe.

I had but little time before me. The Celeste sailed at five. It was after ten now. I could not spend days, weeks, even months, in investigating the acquaintance of the murdered man. For I must sail. Safety demanded it. But decency demanded that, no matter what the cost to me, I do not leave this boy in the lurch. I must find the murderer or offer myself to the police as a witness, even though my credibility be doubtful to them and even though I must expose my own mode of life, as was inevitable.

The telephone-book showed that Rafael Poganni lived in Greenwich Village. We left the dead man lying on the floor, took a taxi to Sixth Avenue and Eighth Street and walked the rest of the way to Poganni's apartment. A negro elevator man told us that he was at home; and, declaring that we were friends of his, we induced him to carry us upstairs without announcing us over the telephone. As the lift ascended, Poganni's door opened. I jammed a revolver against the stomach of the man who opened the door. Tirrell pushed into the room. I heard him cry out in exultation. And as I backed my man into the apartment, over his shoulder I saw Tirrell struggling with another man. The struggle was brief. Tirrell was powerful, and a savage blow sent his opponent unconscious to the floor. Tirrell turned to me. He pointed to the open door of a bathroom.

"Look there! A shirt, the cuffs still bloody. He hasn't had time to wash it out."

My man shrunk almost physically. "It was him did it," he wailed. "I didn't know he was going to do it."

"It was Harris who did the actual killing, then?" cried Tirrell. All the bewilderment had left him. He was tense and alert.

"So help me, it was him," said Poganni my prisoner.

"Why?" I demanded.

"We've not been lucky lately. A ten-thousand-dollar bet we won from Mr Tirrell is the only luck we've had. Afterward we lost fifty thousand. We didn't have the money to make good tomorrow. So Harris proposed robbing Garbon. I called him up and said I was Tirrell. He came down to his office. We waited, hidden in the hall, until he was halfway through his door, and then we jumped him. But I didn't know that Harris was going to kill him. We got his key out of his pocket, opened the safe and took the money. But how did you know we done it?"

With that gift of legerdemain which is my single legitimate talent, I took his pocketbook from inside his jacket. I was holding him tightly so that he did not note my action. I palmed the pocketbook and told him to stand against the wall, with his face toward it. From the pocketbook I took what I expected to find there, a card, which bore his name, and bits of memoranda.

"You shouldn't have left your purse in Garbon's office." I jeered. "Of course that didn't prove who did the killing, but it sent us here."

"My pocketbook is in my pocket—" he began. Then, his figure sank, and he slipped to the floor in a faint of fear.

"I've no time to waste," I said to Tirrell. "Here's your story. There was a matter of business—you can easily figure out what is was—that necessitated your telephoning Garbon. His housekeeper, to your amazement told you that you had already telephoned and made an appointment at the office. Your suspicions were arouse. You raced to the office. You found Poganni's pocketbook. You raced outdoors looking for a policeman. You ran int a stranger and told him what had happened. He suggested that Poganni might get away. He volunteered to go with you to Poganni's apartment. Poganni confessed. The stranger went out to get a policeman".

I looked around the room. There was a table in its center. I opened a drawer, it was crammed with the loot of Garbon s'smfwfwy fw fw fwyp loot of Garbon's safe. I turned back to Tirrell. The two men were still unconscious on the floor.

"Add your ten thousand dollars to this pile of money. We can't steal from a man after he's dead, any more than we could while he was alive. Poganni and Harris will be surprised to learn that there was ten thousand dollars more in their booty than they thought. No one will ever know that you used the money. Tell the police that the bet you made today—it's yesterday now—was made by you acting for Garbon at his request and with his money."

"It's a lie," said Tirrell. "Ought I not tell the truth?"

"You have no right to tell the truth; you owe something to Rose. What good will it do to tell the truth? God has saved you for His own reasons. Will you defeat His purpose?"

"You saved me," he protested.

"The greatest detective that ever lived would not have been justified in assuming Poganni's guilt. It was an inspiration, and inspirations come from outside of us. I claim no credit for it. Goodby."

"Goodby? Where are you going?" he asked.

"To get a policeman. The negro eevator man will testify that I came in with you."

"But why won't you come back with a policeman" he inquired.

"Because the poice and I are better apart," I told him.

"What do you mean?" he asked.

"That I'm a thief." I said. "Now can you understand why I am willing to part with ten thousand dollars to a stranger? It is because I know what temptation is. I know that only once in a thousand times can one withdraw after one has yielded to temptation. You can withdraw. I know that you will."

"You are the finest man I ever met," he cried. "You can't be a thief."

"Ah, but I am," I said. And I had regained my own jauntiness of manner. "Don't pity me," I told him. "And don't tell the little girl."

"I won't," he epromised. And he, who had not wept during his own tragedy, shed frank tears at mine.

I went downstairs. Excitedly I told the elevator man that two murderers were in the apartment upstairs. Outside, I saw a policeman, and told him that he was wanted in the building. Then I walked over to Eighth Street and took the elevated downtown. At Park Place I left the train, found a taxi and drove to the Celeste's dock and boared my steamer.

I did not go to bed until after we had steamed down the East River and out into the bay. I was leaving America behind. But though I went as a thief in the night, I also went as one who had done a decent thing. I had saved one soul and made another happy. Few good peope have a better record, for one evening, than I, John Ainsey, master thief.

Only, we are all instruments in the hands of a higher power. Perhaps I had been used to save others in order that I might earn how to save myself. Could I save myself? I, a thief? Well, in a new land, I would try to find the answer to that question. Somehow I felt that the answer would be in the affirmative.

If I had a Rose Peters, it would be possible . . . Well, I was still young and the garden grows more than one rose.

Scoop's Colyum

DRAKES BRANCH, July 30.—(Grapevine Wireless.)—Open season for fishing stories but few new tales are invented, it is mostly old stuph worked over by second-hand yarn spinners who loaf down at the warehouse.

They were telling fishing stories at Acree's and at last the silent member of the corner spoke.

"Once," he said, "I went after a fish so big that no ordinary line was any use. At last I tried 3-inch rope and hooked him. He was too strong for me to land, so I tied the rope around an old oak tree in a field while I went for help. When I got back the fish had gone.

"Pulled up the tree, I suppose?" put in another man, sarcastically.

"More than that," went on the other. "The roots of that oak were so wide and deep that it took the whole field as well. It's a quarry now."

It is the plain duty of every Democrat (men and women) to go to the polls next Tuesday and help nominate the best man for Congress. The primary puts the nomination into the hands of the people; make the best of it!

The world will always have plenty of fools in it—while you and I are here.

Quite unwittingly the paving crew has been pointing the way to smother out the dandelions, comments Aunt Peruma. It is quite simple. Merely cover them with a 6-inch coating of concrete, and then put on a layer of bricks. The hardiest and most energetic dandelion can't break through.

Competition.

A plump young robin flew down from a tree
To hunt for a worm he happened to see.
A grouchy old rooster scratching near by
Gazed at the robin with hostile eye.
Said the rooster, "what a queer looking chic is that?"
With wings so long and body so fat?
While the robin remarked loud enough to be heard,
"Dear me, an exceedingly drab old bird."
"Can you sing?" robin asked, and the rooster said, "no."
And asked in his turn if hte robin could crow.
So the bird took a tree and the rooster a wall,
And each thought the other knew nothing at all.

Correct this sentence: If you don't mind, remarked the man, I'll take a nap while you are filling the tooth.

He was about to propose. Yet there was one matter which lay heavily upon his hand, so he asked her—"can you wash dishes?"

"Yes," she answered sweetly, "can you dry them?"

Wishing.

Black bass and muskalonge,
Crappie, pike and trout—
Cast a fly, drop a lead,
Yank the sucker out!
O, the day that lies ahead;
The beacon o' my wish!
Come along, you summer time,
And let me catch a fish!

Long days and dreamy days,
Days of sheer delight,
Watching 'em, feeding 'em,
Waiting for a bite!
Strike, you funny beauties, strike!
Show your back or head,
And watch your Uncle Henry jump
And reel a wicked thread.

Fen work and baby bye,
Don't sit up for me!
River, brook, nookie, lake,
Channe' to the sea!
Big fish and little fish,
And may the wind hold fair:
For I am going to the Bay,
And heaven's near to there!

Eat a Little Sugar

When one has overexerted himself and feels exhausted, let him eat a little sugar.

Dr. S. A. Levine and others examined a group of eleven marathon runners before and after a race. The course was a regular marathon route of 26½ miles. The blood was analyzed immediately after the race in each case, and immediately before it in some cases. The outstanding effect of the race was a great reduction in blood sugar.

The men who were most exhausted where those whose blood showed the greatest need of sugar. Those who came out of the race in best condition were found to have a fair amount of sugar in their blood at the termination of the race. A man who fainted, and who had to be carried away in an unconscious state to a relief station, was found to be almost without blood sugar. A man who finished showing no signs of exhaustion, was found to have a nearly normal amount of blod sugar.

One man ate some sweet stuff just before the race. Another ate some during the race. Both finished found to have a nearly normal amount of blood sugar.

On the practical side—Arctic explorers and mountain climbers learned by rule of thumb a long time ago the advantage of carrying some sweet stuff in the pack and eating a little occasionally.

On the laboratory side—experimenters have found that as the blood sugar fell in experimental animals, they became hollow-eyed and exhausted, showing the symptoms displayed by marathon runners, finally becoming unconscious and dying in convulsions, as the blood sugar approached zero.

It may be that when Jack Dempsey goes into the prize ring for his next thirty round fight, his trainer instead of drying him down will let him have water, and will further recognize the advantage of filling his locker by giving him a few chocolates just before the fight and maybe a few more somewhere about the fifteenth round.

A Stumper On Milk.

W. P. writes: We have a little girl six years old in the family who is very fond of milk in its various forms, but breaks out in eczema whenever she partakes of it regularly, even in small quantities. Her father also finds that sweet milk does not agree with him, whether hot or cold, causing disturbance of the stomach and digestion. Can you suggest a means of overcoming the condition in both parties, so that they both may partake of as much milk as they like without unpleasant after effects?

REPLY.

I wish I could but I am afraid I cannot deliver. Your child has an idiosyncrasy as regards milk. She appears to have inherited it from her father.

The father does not need milk especially. He might well accept the inevitable and use other beverage foods.

Milk is more necesary for the growing child. You might try her with various milk products and learn by experimentation if any part of milk is wholesome for her. Begin with skim milk. If milk from which all fat has been removed agrees, you will know it is milk fat or butter which poisons her.

If that disagrees, try a mixture of butter and some other milk solids from which milk sugar has been eliminated. A mixture of fat and milk sugar might be tried, no milk proteids being present. As you go ahead experimenting, keep up health and growth by feeding orange juice, eggs, meat, vegetables and cereals, particularly the first three.

Dreams Like Thoughts.

M. L. B. writes:

1. What causes one to have moist hands?

2. Why do I dream so much?

REPLY.

1. I know of only one organic trouble that causes moist hands. That is hyperthyroidism. That may not be your trouble.

2. Everybody dreams while asleep just as everybody thinks while awake. The one is as natural as the other. Wild, disordered, nerve wrecking dreaming is a companion piece to disordered worrying, anxious, fear induced thinking. They are cut from the same stick. The cure for one is the cure for the other.

The REFEREE

BY ALBERT APPLE.

1954

Uncle Sam says 1954 will be a big year in two ways. He hopes to announce then the final paying off of the war debt. The treasury's plans are based that way. The date will be later if prices drop materially and the people's incomes are correspondingly cut, thereby reducing money available for taxation.

In 1954, also, Uncle Sam expects to have the country bone-dry. That was the date set by experts when national prohibition went into effect. They didn't kid themselves that it could be brought about overnight, one generation, at least.

LOW

This is a good time to buy your bituminous coal for the winter. Recently the soft coal mines have been producing less than at any time for five years except during strikes. Output has been about half of what it is when mines are rushed.

CHAINED

Chicago father arrested for keeping his boy chained up all day at home. Pa says he's away working and chaining was the only way he could keep the lad home. "He stays out until 2 o'clock in the morning sometimes."

The solution of such a problem is not chains, but more playgrounds and recreation centers for the young. High land values and congestion of population have taken from youth its rightful heritage, a place to play. Even alleys, delight of boyhood, are becoming a vanishing institution. How can we expect youngsters to seek innocent enjoyment when they haven't any place for it?

FLOATED

The Wall Street jackpot grows. In the first half of the year 1408 million dollars worth of stocks and bonds were added to the listings on the N. Y. Stock Exchange. The bonds totaled roughly twice as much as the stocks. And over 271 million dollars represented foreign bonds.

We are rapidly approaching the day when the entire national wealth will be blanketed by securities. It will be a big mortgage and everyone will pay interest on it.

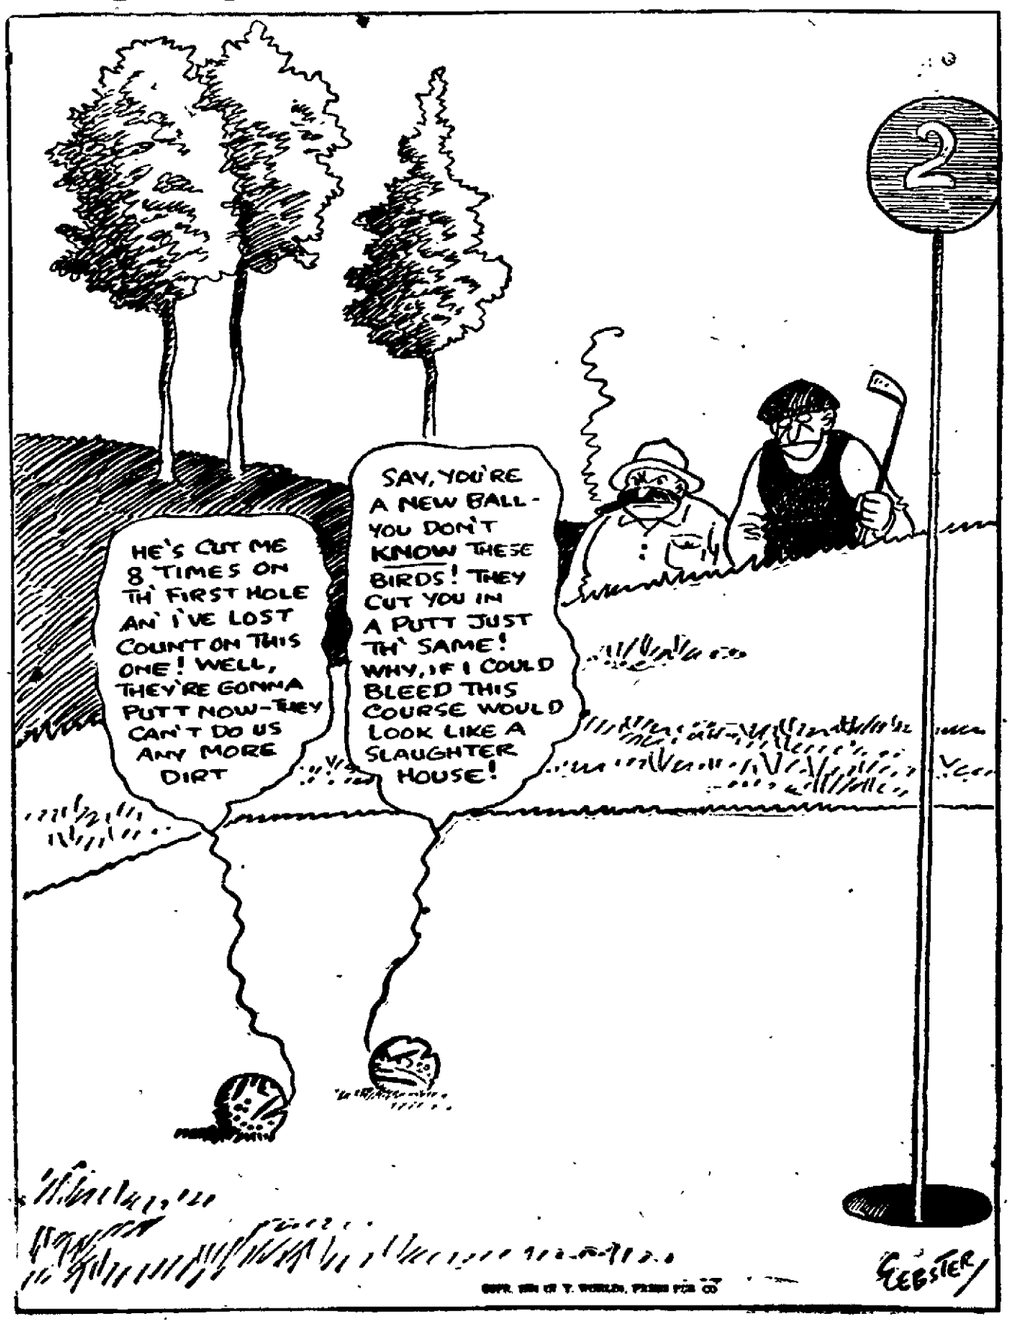

PEP

To prove a man 56 is still young, Arthur Thomas Wilson took a 7500-mile hike with a 50-pound pack on his back. He started from Detroit with only 75 cents. Human nature is pretty decent, he decides, for motorists gave him lifts at least half the way. This cuts his actual hike to about 3700 miles, but that's a big achivement for a man of 56.

Many a man under 30 couldn't do it.

Physical condition in later years depends a lot on the care we give our bodily machinery in youth—also on heredity. The super-strong and healthy are born that way.

Asthma and Hay Fever A Guaranteed Relief

"I have arranged with all druggists here, as well as in all other towns of the U. S., that every sufferer from Asthma, Hay Fever or Bronchial Asthma, can try my treatment entirely at my risk," Dr. R. Schiffmann announces He says: "Buy a package of my Asthmador, try it, and if it does not afford you immediate relief, or if you do not find it the best remedy you have ever used, take it back to your druggist and he will return your money, cheerfully and without any question whatever. After seeing the grateful relief it has afforded in hundreds of cases which had been considered incurable, and which had been given up in despair, I know what it will do. I am so sure that it will do the same for others that I am not afraid to guarantee it will relieve instantaneously. Druggists, anywhere, handling Asthmador will return your money if you say so. You are to be the sole judge and under this positive guarantee absolutely no risk is run in buying Asthmador." Also sent on same guarantee, per parcel post, C. O. D., if not kept by your Druggist, by addressing R. Schiffmann Co., 1734 N. Main, Los Angeles, Calif. Price 65 cents.

What World Flier Wants—

BY MILTON BRONNER
NEA Service Correspondent.

LONDON, July 30.—An American army airplane with the figure "2" painted on it comes roaring from the south, circles two or three times around the great Croydn Aerodrome, and then settles gently on the ground.

A few minutes later two other American airplanes land on this British field.

They have made history. Four hundred and three years ago a Portuguese named Magellan, in command of a fleet of Spanish ships, made similar history. The little vessels of wood and equipped with a few sails, were the first to circumnavigate the globe. And this tiny fleet of three airplanes, led by Lieutenant Lowell H. Smith, has repeated part of that performance.

With pieces of stick and yards of linen, some steel and some aluminum, propelled by powerful engines, these daring latter-day Magellans had gone three-quarters around the globe when they landed in London

And what do you reckon was the first thing Lieutenant Smith did when his machine stopped? He ducked his head out of the cockpit, jammed a cigaret into his young face and enjoyed a smoke.

—o—

Perhaps some day an imaginative historian will attribute to Smith some very fancy words as he stepped out of his machine onto British soil. Let an imaginative chronicler tell what he really said:

"I'd like a drink."

"What, whisky and soda?" asked one of the attaches of the aerodrome as a matter of course.

"No, pard, I said I wanted a drink A long drink. A cold drink. Water with ice in it."

And that was that. And it was said with such fervor that Frederick Sterling, first secretary of the American embassy who was deputizing for Ambassador Kellogg, forgot his speech of welcome—if indeed he had one. All he did was to shake Smith's hand and say—"Howdy!"

Came a solemn moment when the united army of British reporters corralled Lieutenant Smith, took him off to the British Customs Bureau, away from the autograph-hunting crowd, and began firing questions at him concerning the trip

"The worst part of it all was in Northern Alaska," said Smith "There we encountered the woolies—winds that blow 70 miles an hour and then suddenly stop and then just as suddenly begin again—icy cold, whipping sleet and snow into your face."

"Pardon," says a polite Briton, "you say these winds are called the willies?"

"No. Woollies But they give you the willies."

"What's that?" asked the Briton blankly.

—o—

Enters the woman reporter. She beams brightly at Lieutenant Smith and pops the great question—"What is the first thing you are going to do when you land in New York?"

Smith look, at her quizzically for a moment and then drawls—

"Prepare to hop off for Diego."

—o—

There was a pathetic side to the London welcome to our fliers. Mrs. MacLaren, wife of Squadron Leader MacLaren of the British Air Forces, who also started on a world flight, congratulated Smith and his companions upon their success. She thanked them for some favors they had helped secure for her husband.

Then the anxious wife was revealed She knew the terrific fight with the elements that our men had when they crossed the north Pacific. She knew her own husband was in those same regions at that very moment. And she sought comfort by asking our men whether they thought MacLaren was in much danger.

Smith proved himself a gallant diplomat. He told the pretty young wife the truth about the dangers at this time of year and yet in such a way as not to add to her fears

And that very evening the papers reported MacLaren was overdue and that Japanese war vessels were seeking traces of him in the desolate waters around the Kurile Islands.

"Since then," I continued, "through a series of peculiar incidents, you know what has happened. Now it's up to you to play the game, just as I played it when you came to me with a confession that was not so innocent.

"You must excuse me now, for I must see that everything is made ready for the proper celebration of our happy married state."

As I left the room I heard Sydney Carton's voice in the hallway calling:

"Hey, Jack, where are you? I went over to the office and that most decorative secretary of yours told me you had gone home. Is Leslie ill? Certainly nothing else but illness in the family could have kept you from meeting me at the train I told you I was coming in this morning I'll just have to charge you up the amount of that taxi bill."

I had made my way into the room that we are using for little Jack's nursery It opens off of Jack's room as well as mine. It never entered my mind, little Marquise, that Jack would not go into the living room to meet Sydney To my consternation, however, he said,

"Come in here, Syd. Everybody's all right. I confess I forget that you were coming in today"

Then he raised his voice a little and shouted:

"Sydney's here, Leslie."

I did not answer Instead, I locked the doors of communication between both Jack's and my rooms and the nursery

In a moment or two I heard Jack call Nora and tell her to tell me that Mr Carton was here Shortly after Nora informed him she thought I had gone out, that Mother Prescott had told her she had caught a view of me getting into the elevator

Just who Mother Prescott had taken for me, I did not know, but I determined to make her word good and leave the house as soon as I could without being seen I wanted to talk over matters with Ruth

Before I could do this, however, I heard Jack mention my name to Syd, and then in a torrent of words he told him the whole story

Evidently Sydney Carton did not say a word until Jack had finished, then I heard in the most contemptuously sarcastic tones, these words

"Jack, I have always known you were a fool, but it never entered my head that you were such an utter damn fool as you have proved your self to me by the conversation that has just taken place!"

"But, Syd, can you not see Leslie has put me in a terrible position? If this matter should get out I would never be able to hold up my head again."

"And yet you threatened her, Jack"

"Oh, I didn't mean it; neither does she mean what she said to me."

"I rather think she does," said Syd.

I was able to get out of the room then, and heard no more

Talking Honey

By G. L. FURGURSON

(No. 20)

The uses of honey are so many and so varied that even a beekeeper is astonished at the size of the list A glance through the Government Bulletins on the uses of honey in the home and elsewhere discloses recipes for the following which does not at all exhaust the list

Formula for four kinds of cough syrup, one each for colds, tooth paste, freckle salve, softener for the hands honey soap, chapped hands, cold cream polish for kid shoes, waterproofing for leather More than 100 recipes are given for honey candy and honey cookery

For a tickling cough nothing gives quicker relief than a mixture of honey and lemon juice, taken as often as the cough is troublesome

Honey is beneficial in a number of diseases also, but as I am a beekeeper and not a doctor, I am not going to try to prescribe for the sick when I don't know how

Honey isn't a luxury It is cheaper than good jam and preserves, not more expensive than good syrups and is far more healthful than any kind of syrup except pure maple syrup, and ought to be found in every home, the same as milk eggs and butter and other staple foods Good honey, too, is worth the slight difference in price over an inferior article which is sometimes bought because the cost is less.

Some time when you are making layer cake, try a filling made of one part granulated honey and two parts of finely chopped nuts. (The proportions may be changed to suit) Spread between the layers as you would other filling.

GA. TOWN STIRRED OVER OFFICER SLAPPING WOMAN

By MILLARD FERGUSON
(Copyright, 1924, by The Bee)

ATLANTA, July 30.—Can any man, sheriff or what not, slap a woman's face and get away with it?

The question is going to be decided here in the courts, though face slapping, where a woman is concerned, usually needs no such solution here in the South.

"If she had been my wife I'd have killed him if I could" Law-abiding citizens so expressed themselves here today

What happened was that Sheriff A. S Baggett, of Douglasville, Ga., stopped the automobile of Mr. and Mrs E. C. Allen, of Atlanta, last Sunday night and searched it for liquor. Mrs Allen cursed him, he says, and he slapped her face

"Under the same circumstances, I would do it again," said the sheriff. Allen, the husband, did not see the slapping but he heard his wife cry out that Baggett had struck her. Allen said that he rushed at the sheriff but was stopped by a pistol held by the officer's companion. On their return to Atlanta, Mr and Mrs. Allen engaged attorneys and ordered them to go the limit in any possible legal action against the sheriff and meanwhile the court of public opinion met on the street corners and returned its verdict

The sheriff in interviews given today over the telephone, expressed the opinion that a woman who forgets to be womanly in manner or speech no longer deserves the consideration that the South required shall be shown to the feminine sex. The street corner juries disagreed. Their verdict was that a man is not to be slapped—by a sheriff or anyone else under any circumstances

Tell of what happened, E C. Allen said:

"My wife and myself and a friend of hers, Miss Lillian Schultz, were returning to Atlanta from a visit to my wife's family at Buchanan, Ga. We were inside the corporate limits of Douglasville and were traveling at a moderate rate when an automobile washed in front of us, blocking the way I jammed on the brakes and stopped. A man jumped on the running board and grabbed at my throat, and I grappled with him Another came running up with a drawn pistol and ordered me out of the car I had no idea who they were.

"My wife had become excited, of course, just as any woman would when she saw her husband covered by a pistol and know that he was in for a fight. She and Miss Schultz had got out of the car and were standing by the road. Suddenly I heard her exclaim that one of the men had hit her It turned out that Baggett was the man who struck the blow. I rushed at him, but the man with the pistol stopped me. I did not hear my wife use any unseemly language. I wanted to handle this man myself, but they had me helpless at the point of a gun. Now, I'm going to see what the courts will do"

Sheriff Baggett explained that he had a report from Villa Rice, Ga., that a liquor car was headed his way, and that the description of the car given him fitted the Allen automobile.

"We stopped their automobile," continued the sheriff, "but before we could explain who we were they jumped out and started a fuss. Allen was very nice when he found out we were officers, but his wife could not be remonstrated with She cursed me and I slapped her I'd do it again under similar circumstances."

In the last few months there have been a number of cases in the South where automobilists have received rough treatment at the hands of officers searching for liquor Recently E. M. Ivey and Herndon Thomas, members of a party of Atlanta motorists, were wounded near Greenville, S. C., by federal and state prohibition agents who fired upon them, thinking that they were rum runners.

I Spent

Fortunes to Win Beauty
By Edna Wallace Hopper

My mother was rich and ambitious. From my earliest years she urged me to enhance my beauty. She gave me her methods and formulas. Then she took me in a world-search for the newer beauty helps.

Most people know the results. I became a famous beauty and for many years I remained the rage. And now, after 40 years in the limelight, I still play a beauty's part I still look like a girl of 19.

Since then I have made many trips to France. I have consulted noted experts famous beauties everywhere. I have spent fortunes to find all the latest discoveries. So I believe that I now have the greatest beauty helps in existence. And certainly my results seem to prove that I have been induced to place these helps at every woman's call. Druggists and toilet counters everywhere supply them—the very helps I use. Thus every woman may obtain for a trifle the helps that cost me fortunes.

One is a liquid cleanser which I call my Facial Youth. Lucie Lantelme, the famous Parisian beauty, first told me what it did. Now leading beauty experts the world over are advising this great formula.

It contains no animal, no vegetable fat. It cannot assimilate in any way with the skin. So it cleans to the depths, then departs. All the grime, dead skin and clogging matter come out with it. A woman never knows what a clean skin means until she tries this Facial Youth.

Edna Wallace Hopper's Facial Youth sells everywhere for 75 cents Beauty experts charge up to $5 for the same effects.

STEEL COMPANY DECLARES EXTRA DIVIDEND 50 CENTS

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, July 29—Despite a perceptible slackening in steel orperations in the second quarter of thhe year, directors of the United States Steel Corporation today declared an extra dividend of fifty cents on the commonshares for three successive quarters, in addition to the larger dividend of $1.25 a share on the common and $1.75 on the preferred stock.

Total earnings of the corporation, amounting to $41,381,039, while almost $9,000,000 below those of the preceding three months were, however, about $6,000,000 above preliminary estimates made in the financial district.

Confidence in the business outlook of the country was expressed by E. H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel Corporation, after the meeting of directors.

BERLIN STREET CARS COBE BACK

BERLN, July 29.—Street car traffic in the German capital, which dropped to a very low ebb during the inflation period, is decidedly on the ascendancy again. AMERICAN

ALL THINGS MUST END, EVEN THURSTON'S STREAK

(By The Associated Press)

CHICAGO, July 29.—The winning streak of Hollis Thurston, which had run for ten consecutive games was broken today when New York defeated Chicago 9 to 4 in the final game of the series. Thurston's record was saved last Sunday when the Yankees drove him off the mound, but lost the game because of a ninth inning White Sox rally. Babe Ruth's homer, his thirty-second of the season, with two men on base in the fifth sewed up the game for the Yankees. The four bagger of Ruth was his thirteenth this month and ties his best previous record established in June, 1921, the year he set his home run record of 59 circuit drives.

The White Sox could not do much with Pennock, and enjoyed only one big inning when four hits, including a homer by Barrett gave the locals three of their runs.

It was announced that the series drew an estimated crowd of 110,000 for the five games played since last Saturday, which is thought to be a record.

Score by innings: R. H. E.

ATHLETICS BREAK ASSIST RECORD BUT LOSE GAME

DETROIT, July 29.—After tying the score in the ninth, Detroit won from Philadelpuhia here today in the 11th inning 4 to 3. Pratt batted in both the tying and the winning runs. One behind in the last of the ninth, Blue started the hitting for the Tigers with a single. He was sacrificed to second and scored on Pratt's single. A similar play in the eleventh won the game. Hallman making a single, going to second on a sacrifice and scoring on a single by Pratt.

By winning today Detroit remained in second place.

Philadelphia broke the American League record for infield assists in the first nine innings of todays' game, making 21. This number also ties the National League record made by the New York Giants July 13, 1919. Twenty assists were made in the American League at three different times, twice by the New York Yankees and once by Washington. Score:

MURRAY PITCHES WELL BUT THREE HITS COUNT

ST. LOUIS, July 29.—Davis outpitched Murray today and the Browns defeated the Boston Red Sox 3 to 0, thus evening the count in the four game series. Manager George Sisler accounted for all three runs. Sisler's homer in the fourth, his ninth of the season, brought in Evans ahead of him, and his sacrifice in the sixth scored Davis. Murray allowed only three hits but he issued four passes. Score:

SHAUTE'S GOOD BOX WORK BEATS WASHINGTON

CLEVELAND, O., July 29.—Joe Shaute held Washington to six hits today and the Indians took the fourth game of the series 4 to 2. Marberry was driven from the box in the third when the Indians scored three runs on two bases on balls, two hit batsmen and two hits. The Indians filled the bases with nobody out in the fifth but Speece retired the Tribe with one run. Score:

SENATOR LODGE SHOWS VERY GOOD PROGRESS

(By The Associated Press.)

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., July 29.—On the second day following an operation for bladder ailment, Senator Henry Cabot Lodge was reported tonight to have progressed favorably. The distinguished patient at a hospital was decidedly brighter all day, being hearty at his meals, eating what he chose and having the privilege of smoking a cigar.

Senator Lodge's pulse and respiration were normal in the morning and continued normal throughout the day.

While it had been announced that the senator's condition did not warrant the continued issuance of bulletins, Dr. John H. Cunningham at 6 o'clock tonight gave out the following statement:

"Senator Lodge's condition is very satisfactory in every particular."

Our world fliers are beginning to understand that there's no place like home hangars.

Peggy Joyce goes to all the fights in New York. This is what comes of giving so much publicity to million-dollar purses.

Having taken almost $50,000 out of this country, it strikes us that Carpentier has thoroughly established his ability to take it, as the saying goes.

They ca'l Georges the orchid man, and it was fitting that Tunney should say it with flowers.....Lilies, of course.

"The Frenchman is nothing but an actor," hardened critics declare. But give him credit, he was a bad actor with the right in his day.

It's getting so you can't be too sure of anything any more. Imagine Chick Evans losing in the western golf championship.

Yankees seem to have shot their bolt, and it is a wonder the infuriated Huggins hasn't shot himself by now.

There is too much petty jealousy and hypocrisy in the world and not enough base hits that win ball games in the ninth inning.

Tunney didn't do so bad in the Carpentier fight. He got $40,000, won the decision and convinced the world that he's not good enough to take a pasting from Dempsey.

Carpentier's handlers fed him whisky between rounds.....Maybe that's why the fight lasted so long.

PAULO REVOLUTION CAUSES MUCH DAMAGE

(By The Associated Press)

BUENOS AIRES, July 29.—The industrial districts of Sao Paulo were badly damaged during the insurrectionary period, according to messages from Santos describing conditions in Sao Paulo as they were found by the managers of large American enterprises who returned to the city to examine the condition of their properties.

All the foreign banks and most of the office buildings and business houses were said to be safe, although there was some minor damage to them and many windows were broken. There was serious damage to the industrial districts in which there was a great deal of fighting. Many factories and warehouses were destroyed as a result of the shelling and by fire.

TERRORIZED BY RUM RUNNERS

EVERETT, Wash., July 28.—Boats smuggling liquor from Canada into the United States have put Camano Island in terror. This island, 15 miles long, is in the direct route from Vancouver, B. C., to Seattle. Some people living on the island reported the movements of rum runners, said the sheriff of Island county, Washington, but the flying of so many bullets led these folks to adopt silence.

PARTY IN ASHEVILLE TO SELECT PARK SITE

(By The Associated Press)

ASHEVILLE, N. C., July 29.—Dr. Hubert Work, secretary of the interior and member of the national park commission now in this section to select a national park in the southern Appalachian area, was unable to continue the trip from Highlands to this city owing to an attack of indigestion which he suffered at that place this morning. Other members of the party arrived here this afternoon at 5 o'clock.

Reports from Highlands early tonight were to the effect that Dr. Work is not seriously ill but decided that it would be best for him to spend the day and night resting. He is expected to motor to Asheville tomorrow and will go from here to Washington to attend Friday's cabinet meeting. Wednesday, members of the committee will motor to Blowing Rock.

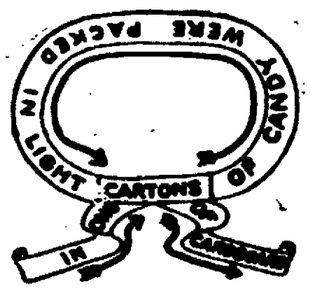

The committee came here from Georgia by way of Highlands and Brevard. They were met at the latter place by representatives of Western North Carolina Inc., and citizens of the city.

TOBACCONISTS UNABLE TO CONNECT SAFELY IN THE PINCHES AND LOSE

MURPHY DAY RESULTS

Dollar Day Receipts	$356
General Admission	$209
Subscriptions	$300
Total Receipts	$865

Yesterday was Herb Murphy Day at Stonewall Jackson Park and although all the goals sought were not reached The Tobacconists had the count on the series evened due to the pitching of "Jinx" Harris who certainly has the right name in so far as the Leafs were concerned yesterday. Only two balls were hit out of the infield on the fly, one a Texas leaguer by George Resco in the fourth and the other a fly off Shoaf's bat in the third which "Railroad" Ray caught after a nice Two other swats traveled to outfield tefritory, both being hits over second base, noe by McDonald and the other by Staley. The only other local hit was an infield roller by Trefrey in the third inning.

The Dollar Day project lent considerable aid to the club treasury, 356 pepole contributing one dollar to see the game. Seven hundred and seventy-three people witnessed the game and those plus a subscription raised among local fans and presented to Manager-Owner Murphy just before the game swelled the receipts for the day not far from the $800 mark. If a few more drives can be put over with equal success the club may be pulled out of its straitened circumstances and put on a paying basis.

Just before the game was started the players of the two clubs assembled around the home plate where they were joined by Manager-Owner Murphy, Hugh T. Williams and Dr. J. Cleveland Hall. The contribution of $300 was presented to Manager Murphy as was a 21-jeweled Waltham watch, offered him as a gift of appreciation and esteem by the members of the team. Mr. Williams made the introductory talk and Dr. Hall voiced the appreciation of the gifts and the confidence of Manger Murphy.

For the first three innings nothing resembling a score trickled across the platter. Then in the fourth after Fuhrey had gone out short to first, Zitzke poked a single into leftfield, stole second and scored when Dave Harris cracked a double into right center. The only other score of the game came when with one down in the eighth Faber O'Hara was hit by a pitched ball, went to second on Fuhrey's single and counted when Mollie Cox poled a long single into right-field, the play at the plate being very close.

"Jinx" Harris had more stuff than he knew what to do with and gave up only four hits but the locals lost a couple of chances to score even at that. After Shoaf had gone out to Ray in rightfield in the third inning, Trefrey beat out an infield hit, went to second while Myers was being thrown out at first, took third when Jimmy Teague erred Staley's easy roller, but McDonald ended the frame by being thrown out at first.

In the sixth Staley opened with a single over second base, was sacrificed to second by McDonald, went to third od a fielder's choice and died there when Eddie Regan whiffed for his second time during the game. In the preceding inning, with one out, Trefrey walked, stole second and third in succession, Brandon throwing to the hot corner too late to catch the fleet-footed Art, the throw was low and got away from Jimmy Teague, the ball was lost for a second and Trefrey tore out for the plate, Jimmy recovered the ball and caught Trefrey, or at least Sabrie said he did.

In the fourth inning Resco popped a Texas leaguer back of second base, went to the keystone sack when Harris uncorked a wild heave, went to third on a fielder's choice. With one out and Resco on third Harris forced Cochlin to hit to him and Ernst ended the affair by going out second to first.

Trfrey had a bad day afield in contrast to his brilliant performance of Monday. In the third inning Brandon hit a hot one through Dave Cochlin, it went on to Trefrey and he let it get away from him and allowed the catcher to continue on to second base. In the sixth with two down, Cox hit one into short left center. Tref came in after it but dropped it, let it get away from him and Cox storted down to second. Trefrey in his haste recovered the ball nad threw it into right-field and Cox stopped at third. Dave Harris was intentionally passed and Cox was caught at the plate. Ernst to Staley to Ernest.

Dave Harris continued his sensational swatting by getting a double and two single in three legal times at bat. He was walked once.

HIGH POINT AGAIN DEFEATS THE TWINS

WINSTON, July 29.—Thompson was hit hard here today by Pointer sluggers and the locals dropped the second straight game of the series to the league leaders by a score of five to two. Three Twin errors assisted in the scoring.

The visitors took an early lead and were never headed. The only local runs came in the fifth. The opposition had already counted three times.

Lond led the local hitting with two bingles with J. Smith led the way for the Pointers with three out of four. B. Smith hit a double in the fifth inning with the bases loaded for the only two local runs.

Tom Gheen was started on the mound for the visitors but proved wild and ineffective while Rube Eldridge, who replaced him in the fifth inning, had the locals at his mercy.

Outfielder Lee has been released. Franks and Lowdermilk now compose the Winston outfield trio with Jet Long.

SOVIET GIVES DEATH SENTENCE TO DRIVERS

TIFLIS, July 29.—Drastic punishment is being meted out by the Soviet authorities to engineers and drivers who are held responsible for train accidents. In the Transcaucasia district an engineer named Gavrilov and two drivers Voyevodin and Sharyshev, were sentenced to death by a special commission appointed by the Georgian council of commissars to inquire into the numerous railway fatalities which have recently occurred in that district.

If some brick masons are making $103 a week, as reported, that ought to keep them from going to the wall.

RALEIGH LOSES TO THE BULLS AGAIN IN EIGHTH

DURHAM, July 29.—The locals again defeated the Capitals here this afternoon by a rally in the eighth inning that netted four runs and a 5 to 5 victory.

With the score two to one in favor of the visitors in the last half of the eighth the home club launched an assault on Pitcher Ross that netted four runs. Elliott was sent to the relief of Ross and finally retired the side.

Mallonee with a triple home run and single in four times at bat was the hitting star of the day.

WHEAT GROWERS IN CANADA TO MARKET COOPERATIVELY

WINNIPEG, Man., July 29.—A wheat pool merger which contemplates the marketing of the entire wheat crop of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta by one cooperative organization, is being planned. The greater part of the wheat crop of these provinces has, in the past been marketed by separate provincial pools.

Whether the merger will be effected in time to market this year's crop is uncertain, but those behind the movement declare they will begin wholesale cooperative marketing operations at least by next year.

"Canada has been a pioneer in advancing the interests of its farmers by the adoption of a cooperative marketing system," an official statement declared. "The cooperative movement in the nation is more than 20 years old. Practically every product of Canadian farms is now marketed cooperatively. The system has enabled the farmers to get the highest prices at a minimum cost of marketing."

Yankees and Tigers Win While Indians Lick Senators

YANKEES STILL SETTING PACE IN CHASE FOR FLAG

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, July 30.—Still setting the pace that kills, the Yankees today continue to show the way to Detroit by a full game in the American League flag chase. By coming to life enough to annex the final from the pesky Athletics, to whom they had dropped two in a row, the Tigers held their own. Washington slipped a notch through its loss to Cleveland and now pursues Cobb's outfit at a distance of a game and a half.

Although Pennock has seen better days o nthe hurling hill, the effective hitting of his team mates carried him along to an easy 9 to 4 victory. In clouting his 32nd homer of the season and his 13th of the month, Babe Ruth tied his best previous monthly average established in June 1921, the year he set his home run record of 59c.

Philadelphia made a strong bid for the final of its series with Detroit but the Tigers put across the tying run in the 9th and won out in the eleventh, 4 to 3 Pratt batted in both the tying and the winning runs

Air-tight pitching by Shaute enabled Cleveland to gallop away with a 4 to 2 win from Washington The Indian hurler let the Senators down with six hits.

Murray and Workman of Boston, had the misfortune to lose to St. Louis, 3 to 0, despite the fact that the Browns obtained only three bingles off their combined deliveries.

Batting even better than he pitched, Arthur Nehf of the Giants beat the Cardinals practically single handed, 5 to 2. Nehf skillfully sprinkled St. Louis' 10 hits over nine innings and clouted out two home runs, which accounter for three of hsi club's markers.

Six hits and three runs were the measure of the Phillies' offensive against Kaufmann and the Cubs walked off with a 4 to 3 decision.

While Kremer held Boston to 3 hits Pittsburg hammered out an 8 to 1 triumph over the Braves. Marty Shay, just acquired from the Bean Eaters from Worchester, played second for the home team.

Brooklyn leads Cincinnati by only a game and a half today as a result of its third loss to the Reds in five games. Th eWesterners slaughtered Roberts and Doak for 17 hits and 12 runs as against the Robins two. Tilly Walker hit two home runs.

POLITICS BLAMED FOR BIG BOOZE MOVEMENT

By E. W. SHERWOOD

(Copyright, 1924, by The Bee)

TORONTO, On., July 30 — Canadian prohibition enforcement officials, who set out recently to discover the source of a flood of genuine id pre-prohibition whiskey gin, rum and wines, including huge quanties of champagne, which flowed hrough the Toronto bootleg market, came up for air today with—a theory Whence the liquor came or whither it wentf—or it all has disappeared—the authorities could not learn in a detail But why it appeared, and why it was snapped up they think, is quite clear

The answer is "politics" On October 23, this province of Ontario is scheduled to vote on the question of repealing the provincial Volstead act, known as the Ontario temperance act, and returning to governmental sale of hard liquors, with beers and light wines perveyed in licensed hotels

Announcement of the date for the election say the authorities caused the owners of many "million dollar cellars" to put their wares on the market—gambling on their belief that the election would be won by the wets. Bootleg prices slumped, even for the old stuff

But if the liquor holders thought wet days were ahead, there were also long parched individuals who thought no such happy ending was in sight. And it was these, according to the authorities, who promptly bought up all the pre-prohibition stuff they could get their hands on.

The bootleg market is about normal again now Whether the first flood will be followed by additional streams of illegal potables will depend largey upon how the present owners "dop" the results of the coming election

Meanwhile, the campaign gathers strength, with the dry forces letting loose an avalanche of statistics to show why the pendulum should swing in the other direction. The wet battalions count on civic pride as an important factor in their campaign.

Montreal, situation in the center of wet Quebec province, they point out has blossommed and burgeoned as a mecca for motor tourists from the more or less arid United States, and has reaped a rich harvest in dollars Meanwhile Montrealers have added insult to injury by sitting up on their hind legs and directing old fashioned horse laughs toward dry Oontario as they pocketed the American sheckels

The actual profits from liquor sold in Quebec, of course, go to the government But the government spends a goodly part of it in road building —to bring in more tourists with more sheckels—and n other forms of public works which make for good times.

The dry forces here contend however, that Montreal's wetness has made t a stamping ground for international crooks, the headquarters of dope smugglers and dealers and many many other terrible things

So the battle rages. If by any chance the vote goes wet, as it has in the four western provinces of Canada, there is little doubt that prohibition enforcement authorities of the United States—in New York state and Michigan in particular—will find their difficulties enhanced by the conditions which will necessarily prevail along a semi-saturated border line But no one who isn't a partisan cares to predict the outcome. Ontario has been a tempernce stronghold for a decade and only the counting of the vote will reveal its attitude today

The Sportsman

NEW YORK, July 30.—The status of the olympic games today reminds one of that in which football found itself twenty years ago. As football came through its period of travail, so will the olympic games. The olympics will not be dropped but like football of two decades ago, they will probably be "reformed."

If those who advocate thei rdiscontinuance and those who want them retained would put their heads together and eliminate some of the danger points it would be more profitable than to make charges and counter charges as they have been doing.

It will take hard, conscientious work to map out the really needed reforms and work of this sort cannot be started too soon. It does no good to say nothing is wrong about them if faults exist that can be corrected.

Football was reformed at a critical stage by its friends, and the olympic games will be reformed by their friends through the elimination of such events as depend upon close judges' decisions and by the excision of sports which unduly stir the passions of the spectators.

And probably the limitation of the number of entries possible in any event would go far toward making the games a fair contest for those countries who cannot afford great expenditures.

One thing about Jess Guilford's present game of golf is that his putting, always good, is better than ever. And the driving of this famous Siege Gun is simply prodigious. The manner in which he defeated Ray Gorton at Woodland recently was most impressive and inclined those who saw the match to wager he will go farther than his old rival, Jess Sweetser, at Merion in the National Amateur.

A Story Without Words

For the Game's Sake

By LAWRENCE PERRY

(Copyright, 1924, by The Bee)

SEABRIGHT, N. J., July 30. — Looking over the doubles teams now participating in the thirty-first annual tournament of the Seabright lawn tennis and Cricket Club the question rises whether doubles play as an art and as a popular element of tennis has declined with the years.

Certainly we have no doubles teams today who compare, at least in terms of popularity, with famous partners of past years Tilden, the champion seems to make little of doubles and whenever he can he is paired with his youthful protege, Sandy Weiner. He used to pair with Vincent Richards and on form, as well as in performance, they probably represent the best doubles tennis that the United States could put forth. But from the standpoint of tactics a least they are not so impressive. Williams and Washburne, perhaps our best known doubles team, are fairly good, but no more. So with the Kinsey brothers.

In former times American players made a study of doubles play and this, according to the testimony of Tilden, is something that is not done today. We do not know the game, he says.

On the vey courts at Seabright, where our present stars are disporting themselves in singles and doubles have seen teams whose names will strike a reminiscent psark within the breasts of the old time tennis enthusias, who will recall the interest with which doubles play was followed, an interest, as it seems now at any rate, hardly less keen than was manifested in singles play

Sears and Slocum; the great Dohertys from England, the Huntingons; Pell and Behr, Hacket and Alexander, Ward and Davis, the Wrenn brothers; McLoughlin and Bundy, Little and Louchard and later Johnston and Griffin These are some of the great teams that come to mind

The furore which the Dohertys caused when they came here will be remembered, but as memory goes it seems to have been their doubles play acclaimd as revolutionary in brilliancy and in science, that was most talked about.

When well played, doubles in tennis is a very spectacular game and the field for strategy, co-ordination and the like is very large. It is regrettable that doubles play as a definite art has declined as it has.

HUNT'S DAILY LETTER

By HARRY B. HUNT

WASHINGTON, July 30. —Andy Mellon, on his vacaion trip abroad, is spending more time at the National Gallery of Art in London than he is at the Bank of England

And over in Paris, he will devote more hours to admiration of the works of art in the Louvre than to consideration of the French budget and the reparations problem

For while he is by vocation a capitalist, Mellon is by avocation a connoisseur of ar. As the former, naturally, he is an expert on hose masterpieces of the engraver's art turned out down at the Bureau of Engraving where Uncle Sam's currency and bonds are produced

He doesn' permit his love for the higher art to diminish in the slightest his admiration for a handsomely designed banknote.

But like the senior J. P. Morgan, who will be remembered no less as an art collector and critic than as a financier, Mellon finds his real enjoyment in his advancing years in the contemplation of masterpieces of painting and sculpture.

The mysery of that much-pictured underslung pipe affected by Charley Dawes. President Coolidge's running mate, is at last explained.

It helps Dawes keep cool with Coolidge.

Not that the smoke serves as a sedative and thus keeps the high-strung Dawes pulling pleasantly with the calmly contemplative Cal, though it may have that efect, too, but the smoke from this particular brand of pipe is supposed to have lost all of its heat and bite before it reaches the mouth of the vice presidential pipe-puffer.

The stem of the Dawes pipe, as you have noted from the pictures, is affixed at the top, not the bottom of the bowl. But it enters merely an outer shell

There is an inner bowl containing the tobacco, which is screwed into the outer bowl. This inner container has its opening at the bottom. Connecting the stem in the outer shell with his pening in the inner bowl is a spiral passage 20 inches long, in which the smoke is cooled and purified.

It is suggested that the owner of the patent on this pipe might make a "cleaning" if he would get authority to advertise it as the "official" G. O. P. dudeen, guaranteed to help loyal Republicans "keep cool and keep Coolidge."

Next to the president of the United States, there is just one person in the service of the government whose pay is appropriated specifically in his own name.

This man is Joel Grayson, in charge of the document room of the House of Repreeentatives

Grayson who has worked for the House for 49 years, is designated as House for 49 years, is designated as a "special employe of the House," and as such his job cannot be passed on.

When he quits or dies the job will die with him

For it is the special fund of information within his own brain, covering the bills, resolutions and reports of the last half century, which make Grayson's services so valuable

And this cannot be passed on to others, although the official files containing more han a million and a half separate documents and publications, will, of course, remain.

Grayson is a little, stoop-shouldered, gray-haired, be-spectacled man of 66, kindly, courteous and always obliging.

If you want the official facts covering any question that has arisen in Congress since Grayson first came to Washington as a page boy in '75, the chances are he can give them to you offhand. If you want the documents, he can find them for you, too, in short order.

He is, in fact, really the human card index of Congress.

Now It Is a Patent War!

By LARRY BOARDMAN

WASHINGTON July 30 —The U S Patent Office—serio-comic vaudeville act, always good for a smile or a sob, headline government attraction since 1836 —is in the limelight again

Charges of favoritism, discrimination, inefficiency and domination by a ring of outside patent attorneys, have been made on the floor of the Senate by its Committee on Patents

The commissioner of patents, Thos E. Robertson is described in the charges as "an arbitrary czar, not interested in justice, bu only in dealing but his favors to special attorneys"

These charges are hotly denied by Robertson and his supporters. But his enemies claim they don t tell "the half of it!"

Since its establishment the Patent Office has issued 1,500,000 patents It has turned down others and tied up still more All these present some strange contrasts

Auto Patent Delayed 16 Years

On Dec 11, 1895, for instance A. M Herring applied for a patent on the first airplane. It was rejected on the ground that "no airplane could possibly fly"

Two years later Herring built a plane according to the specifications contained in his patent application, and made the first successful airplane flight on record But his patent was never granted.

Yet one was issued to C R E Wulff, a Frenchman for a device designed to propel and guide balloons with harnessed eagles

George B Selden applied for a patent on the first automobile on May 8, 1879 He referred to it as a "road engine"a motor-driven wagon The patent was held up for 16 years, not being granted until Nov 5, 1895

Senator King of Utah, outlines the case as follows:

"A number of reputable patent attorneys have complained to me of the capricious, arbitarary and despotic conduc of the commissioner of patents.

"There is an organization of patent attorneys, within which are found the favored ones, and outside of which are the ones agains whom the commissioner discriminates

"He assumes to say who is a good lawyer and who is not

"I am also informed that there is much inefficiency in the Patent Office and also delay"

King is backed up in his charges by Senator Spinstead of Minnesota, who introduced the Patent office investigation resolution

"The commissioner of patents has disbarred attorneys from paten practice simply because of criticism," says Shipstead

"If this isn't intimidation and propaganda, I'd like to know what is"

Present procedure for securing a patent is to employ an attorney to file proper application.

Under normal conditions the application comes up for investigation by a Patent Office examiner in about 11 months

It may then be rejected because the examiner decides it coincides too closely with a patent already granted, or that it will not be practicable

It is then up to the attorney to file an amendment to the application in an endeavor to prove the examiner wrong If the attorney is successful, the application is again placed on file and another 11 months roll by

The examiner may then reject the application a second time because of some other point, not mentioned in his first report

One complaint agains alleged Patent Office inefficency and delay, made by the league of American Inventors, through President Alexander J Wedderburn ,is that this performance may be —and ofen is—continued indefinitely

"All Nonsense," Says Robertson

Commissioner Robertson however doesn't appear the least bit worried about all the fuss.

"Why," he says, "I requested the secretary of the interior quite a while ago to appoint a committee to investigate conditions in the Patent Office and recommend any changes it saw fit

"We always have been glad to receive suggesions And we always give them careful consideration

"This alk about favoritism and intimidation is all nonsense There is none of it around the Patent Office that I know of."

Although hanging fire for some time, the Paent Office invesigation bomb was really touched off by the Sover-Nelson "Eskimo Pie" patent case

Paent for the chocolate-covered ice cream delicacy was applied for, but at first rejected 'Many ears ago a patent had been issued for he "Cannon Ball" a chocolat-covered cake The two articles were adjudged to be too similar.

Attorneys were changed, and the point raised that Eskimo Pie was designed to be eaten while held in the hand. There was nothing on record concerning holding 'Cannon Balls" in the hand—and the Eskimo Pie patent was granted within a few days after the filing of this amendment.

Some comment was occasioned, when the Patent Office chief examiner, who protested against rushing through the patent in question, was reduced in grade. But the real blow-off came when Attorney E L. Rice criticized the patent commissioner's action—and was disbarred

Old Paper Tells of 'Captain' Sydnor's Voyage up the Dan

Dr. T. L Sydnor a few days ago came across an old copy of the Danville Register bearing the date of December 27th 1888 detailing a humorous account of a trip by his steamboat "The Lily of the Dan" from Danville to Madison, N. C This was in the day before water dams had altered the depth of the stream in many places and when bateaux brought tobacco from Madison, other freight being carried over the watercourse, which is no longer used for transportation purposes. The whimsical article will bring back to the memory of many of the older residents that period when Dan River was used as a water way and was an asset to the community

"Dr T. L Sydnor's little steamboat "The Lily of the Dan" lately made a trip from Danville to Madison N C, and from the captain's log book, the Register culls the following items of interest On board Captani Sydnor and Mate Lindsay:

"Wednesday, September 19th left Danville at noon, light winds and comparatively smooth sea Ship making two to four knots an hour Wednesday night spent on the briny deep at anchor near Oak Hill

"Thursday, September 20th A M pulled up rock unhooked anchor and lit out for Leaksville. Arrived at 10 a m. replenished the ship's larder and bought the mate some cigarettes. Left Leaksville at 3 p m spent night on shipboard Captain disturbed mate snoring and mate had to smoke all night.

"Friday 21st weighed anchor 7 10 a. m Mate sleepy arrived at Madison 10 a m Loud whistle astounded natives The whole town came down to the river bank to see what was the matter Some thought the freshet had washed down a steam saw mill others thought the Yadkin Valley railway had reached town unbeknownst to the people Left Madison on return trip at 2 30 o'clock rough sea ship making 6 knots an hour being headed down stream

"Arrived Leaksville at 5 p m. Spent night on shore

"Saturday 22nd Left Leaksville at 8:30 a. m. Rolling sea 10.20. Mate seasick Captain has all the work to do

"1.40 Captain sick too ship running herself

12-17 mate better. captain worse

12 42 Wind high rough sea. captain better He is eating. mate getting worse

"1 p m storm subsiding; captain and mare getting worse.

"1:30 arrived at Danville, all well"

It was called Murphy Day but it looked more like Harris Day. Jinx Harris was certainly a jinx all right, but instead of being the jinx to himself, he had the Danville baseball players jinxed. The Leafs didn't get but three balls out of the infield. Two of them were hits, the other a fly to right Despite this they had a number of chances to score but that "stuff" of Harris' made them look foolish They were utterly helpless when a man was on base.

Three Chances Passed Up.

In the fourth with Resco on second and none out, Regan, Cochlin and Ernst sent feeble rollers to the infield. In the sixth with Staley on second and with but one out, Resco rolled out and Regan whiffed In the second inning, McDonald singled but was forced by Resco who made second when Fuhrey threw the ball over Cox's head. Another good chance to score but Regan struck out and after Cochlin was hit, Ernst was out on a roller. They were some mighty good chances wasted.

Dave Harris Gets Three.

Although Jinx Harris was the shining star yesterday, Dave Harris comes in for some honors too, the Boston recruit got three safeties out of three efforts and one of them was a double the only extra base wallop of the visitors. He claimed an intentional pass, too.

Players Like Murphy.

That Dollar Day and the subscription by some loyal fans, helped Manager Murphy out of his financial troubles considerably yesterday. Exactly $865 was realized at the gate and by contributions A few more boosts like that and Danville will be assurred of baseball the rest of this season anyway. That Murphy is popular with his men, was evidenced yesterday when a handsome 23 jeweled watch was presented to him, a gift of his players, many of whom at the time realizing that they would not be here again next year If a bunch of players thinks all that much of their pilot, and with their salaries behind too, it stands to reason that they are going to play the best ball they are capable of playing And that is the very reason that the fans should turn out in larger numbers and help them along.

Two Leaders Start Again.

That High Point gang seems to have come out of their slump Their winning streak has resumed. They made it two straight over the Twins yesterday. Thompson seems to be sliding. Yesterday he was hit unmercifully after having been lighted on for fair by Durham Incidentally Durham, is keeping pace by winning consistently. If Danville don't watch out, while they are hanging tenaciously around the .500 mark, Greensboro or Winston will nose them out of the first division.

Wilson on Hillock Today.

Lefty Lawrence Wilson will probably go in against the Patriots yesterday in an effort to cop the series. Wilson is nearly always effective against Carroll's bunch. However, it may be McWhirter if Wilson doesn't seem to be in his best form, during the warming up.

CLEO CARLISLE TO SUCCEED TY COBB

(By The Associated Press.)

CHARLOTTE, July 30.—Cleo Carlisle, rightfielder of the Charlotte South Atlantic league, recently purchas edby the Detroit American club, will succeed Ty Cobb in the outfield when the latter retires, according to a statement made here today by Edward J Herr, Tiger scout

"He will take Cobb's place in the outfield when that great ball player retires," said Herr, "and in my opinion he will shine with almost as great lustre as that wonderful fielder and batsman. The Detroit club would not take $50,000 for Carlisle."

Carlisle has been batting lately at .345

"The Institute offers first-class physical, mental, moral training in the midst of a wholesome Christian environment at a very moderate cost.

Military schools make men and give education plus.

Dr. Frank Crane recently said, "There should be military training for every boy in the United States"

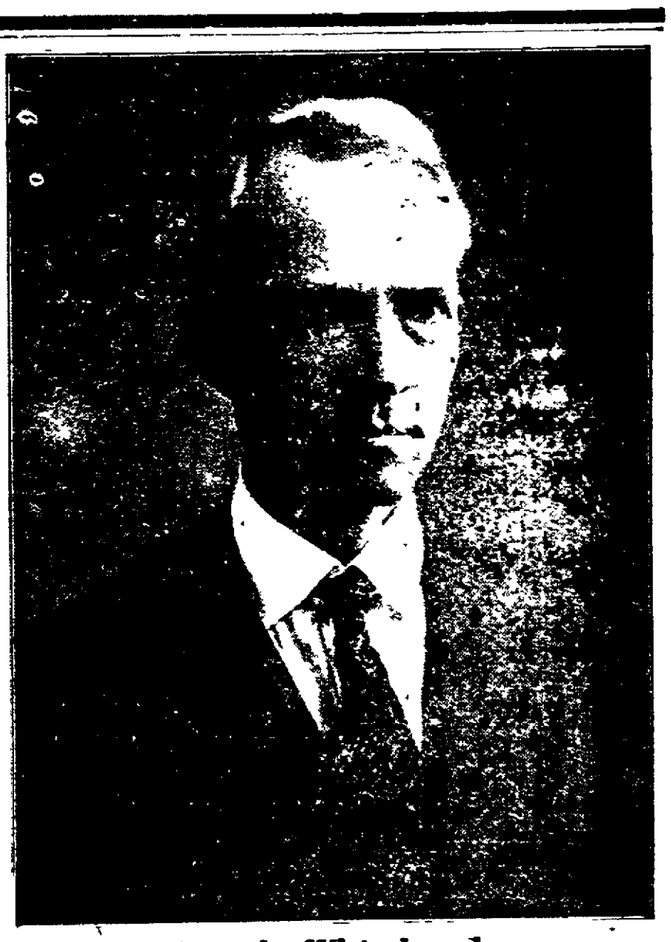

General Pershing summed up the many advantages of these schools when he said.

"There is a phase of military training for young men to which attention is especially invited, and that is the benefit to the individual himself. He learns self-discipline, hygiene, self-confidence, and has an opportunity to develop qualities of leadership with an understanding of its responsibility. I would that every young man might have these advantages"

One of our patrons wrote recently, "We feel that the best thing we ever did for our boy was to send him to the Danville Military Institute."

In New York

NEW YORK, July 30.—The mildest-mannered, softest-voiced man I ever have met writes about prive-fighters and their mauling pursuits.

He lives at their camp, speaks their language, numbers countless sporting writers of national fame among his friends, and even boxes with a vengeance worthy of a topnotch amateur.

During the war he was an aviator, hi scompanions of that period relating many instances of his daring in flight

But to talk to him you would classify him as a shy, retiring young blade from some crossroads hamlet where the cheese and cracker salesman is a visiting hero.

He is Dean Synder and he directed the publicity for the Dempsey-Gibbons affair at Shelby, Mont., which although a gorgeous blow-up from a promotion standpoint, received more space in newspapers than any other boxing encounter in history. Snyder was the redeeming feature of Shelby, sporting writers contended

Snyder is here as the go-between for newspapermen and promoters of several coming fights. He was born in Wichita, Kan., where prive fights are seen only in the movies.

MORNING COTTON LETTER

Thomson & McKinnon

NEW YORK, July 30 — Cables strong. South had mostly fair weather yesterday. Forecast is for showers in Oklahoma, Northwest, Arkansas, northwest portion of east Texas and southwest Louisiana; balance of belt fair.

Journal of Commerce on reports averaged date July 26th makes condition 66 5 compared with their own condition of 65.9 last month, they making improvement in Texas 2.9. All states show improvement except Carolinas and Louisiana.

Worth Street quieter. Much of recent buying of goods said to be speculative. One of the largest merchants says mills will buy cotton from hand to mouth because of that policy by retailers working back through wholesales to the spinners.

Texas weather remains the chief market factor although the drought seems pretty well discounted to date.

MORNING STOCK LETTER

Thomson & McKinnon

NEW YORK, July 30. The U. S. Steel Corporation did what was expected of it. A liberal dividend and a pretty good showing for the quarter was the pleasing announcement after the close yesterday. And for a full measure Judge Gary gave utterance to some very encouraging words. The judge never does much guessing. He always knows what he is talking about and when he says anything you can bank on it. The judge says improvement is already noticeable and big business will come immediately before or after the election. This we all believe Th nation believes it. It is a national thought today and this thought constituts one of the powerful forces back of the stock market. Until something occurs to change this thought we are all justified in maintaining a bullish attitude.

Momentarily the stock market may be influenced adversely by a weakened technical position, but this is only a temporary matter. The real trend continues upward.

Coolidge Urged to Take a Rest

(By The Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 30.—Friends are urging upon President Coolidge a brief vacation immediately after the exercises of his formal notification as Republican nominee here August 14, but the executive has failed to reveal plans for the immediate future.

Mr. Coolidge, they point out, has been under heavy pressure during his year of office.

Secretary Weeks has invited Mr. Coolidge to his summer home in New England and it is thought if the President does leave the capital for a short time he will probably go to New England.

FIFTIETH ARTICLE

"Callable" Provisions In Certain Bonds.

One of the provisions to which investors should give attention is the price at which a bond is callable or a preferred stock may be redeemed. Bonds are divided into two classes, non-callable and callable. The firsa named needs no particular comment. The buyer knows just what he is getting. He is sure that his investment will be undisturbed until the bond matures if he cares to hold it that long.

Most corporations, however, insert in the agreement a clause giving them the right to retire the issue before its maturity at a certain premium. This is nearly always the case with high coupon rate bonds put out at a time when money is dear. This was the rule in 1920 an d1921 when so many 8 per cent. bond issues were marketed. The borrower at that time had to pay a high price for his money but looking forward to a time like the present when money is cheap provision was made for retiring the issue before maturity so that it might be refunded at a lower rate. For example in October, 1920, the Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania sold about $25,000,000 in 7 per cent. bonds due 1945 at 95 but with the provision that the bonds should be redeemable at 107½ on any interest date. Less than three years later this issue was called at 107½ and a new 5 per cent. bond put out to take its place, affecting a substantial saving to the company in interest charges.

From the standpoint of the investor these callable provisions are of importance in that they automatically limit the market price of the bond. No one is willing to pay much above a callable price unless the security is so very high grade as to compensate in part for the risk of having the issue paid off at less than the price paid.

In the same way with preferred stock a provision that the stock may be retired at a certain figure holds down the market price It should not be inferred that either bonds or preferred stock selling at or just above the prices at which they may be called or redeemed are undesirable investments. They may be very desirable to anyone to whom the necessity of reinvesting is not an objection because a higher return can often be had from these callabl esecurities than from the same grade which are noncallable.

The point can be illustrated by two preferred stocks, United States Steel and Standard Oil of New Jersey, fairly comparable in investment quality but with U. S. Steel preferred selling higher than Standard Oil of New Jersey preferred simply because the former cannot be retired while the later is callable at 115. The investor then gets a little larger yield on the Standard Oil issu efor taking the risk that some day he may be compelled to replace his investment.

DAVIS VACATION ENDS; TO BEGIN CAMPAIGN TOD'Y

Has Completed Acceptance Address, Which Touches on Many Issues

(By The Associated Press.)

DARK HARBOR, Maine, July 30.—After two weeks in the peace and quiet of the Penobscot bay slands, John W. Davis, Democratic presidential nominee, will start back to New York late today to begin the drive that is to carry his political fortunes into the November elections.

In his pocket is the draft of his acceptance address, the product of his labors in Maine ande his all-important utterances of the campaign! It will be delivered ten days hence at Clarksburg, probably from the veranda of his homestead where his sister naw resides. While embodied in it will be a discussion of many issues, the speech's central theme will be "honesty in government," the 1924 battle cry of the Democratic party. The nominee will assail the record of the Republican administration as disclosed in senate nvestigations and will attack President Coolidge and other Republican leaders for what the Democrats have charge was their reluctance in permitting the full flow of the inquires and in acting upon the information developed.

Next in importance will be the discussion of foreign affairs. Here again, hi sfriends say, the Democratic candidate will attack the record of the Harding-Coolidge administration. Of little less import will be the discussion of agricultural relief. Mr. Davis is described by those who are most intimately acquainted with his ideas as inclined to be very liberal in the treatment of the subject and they would not be surprise if he goes a step further than does the Democratic platform.

The candidate is known to regard that section of the farm plank referring to the restoration of the foreign markets for American farm products as somewhat vague. He believes a specific means of accomplishing this end should be set before the country.

As it is in the platform, the Ku Klux Klan issue probably will be dealt with generally as the subject of religious liberty. So far as the Democratic ranks rank themselves are considered this is regarded by many party leaders as one of the most delicate of the many subjects to be treated.

Taxation and tariff will be other major topics of the address. Other subjects taken up in the platform are likely to be dealt with in a rather general with their development to the time when Mr. Davis will plead his cause face to face with the voters in many states.

NEW YORK, July 30.—Declaration of a 50-cent extra dividend by the U. S. Steel Corporation for the third successive quarter lifte dstock prices higher at the opening of the day's market. Steel common opened 1¾ points higher at 104⅞ and gains averaging about a point were scored by pivotal issues, including Baldwin, American Can, General Electric and several minor shares.

Independent steel shares were helped by E. H. Gary's statement that there had been considerable improvement in steel buying since July 1. Moderate gans were recovered by Bethlehem, Republic, Sloss-Sheffield and Gulf States Steel, the latter moving up 1½ points. U. S. Steel advanced further to 105, the highest price reached in several months. Improvement in general market sentiment encouraged buying of a wide variety of shares, bringing advances of 1 to 4 points in West Penn Power, American Waterworks, Mariand Oil, United Cigar Stores, Atlantic Coast Line, Erisco preferred, Northwestern and Chandler Motors. Foreign exchanges opened steady.

Corn will be a short crop all over the country this year except in the cities.

NEW YORK COTTON.

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, July 30.—Reports of rain at a number of Texas points encouraged slight selling pressure in the cotton market early today and were responsible for a barely steady opening with first prices on active months 7 points higher to 12 lower. Later the market declined 15 to 18 points under the previous close, October selling at 28.85 and December 28.00 but rallied again on support from Wall street and local traders.

Sentiment also was affected by expectations that the weekly weather report would be generally favorable. Owing to the conflicting character of southwest crop news, however, selling was not aggressive in the first hour, but seemed to come mostly from traders who had small profits.
